Terrific Wind Storm Tuesday

Foot of Snow Drifts Mountain Roads —Poles and Limbs of Trees Blown Down.

All day Tuesday and that night a terrific wind storm raged here with rain flurries which at night turned to snow. The storm was of such proportions that it crippled the Kingston Gas & Electric Company and as a result Ponckhockie and other sections of the city were plunged in darkness when the street lighting system went out of commission.

At police headquarters it was reported Tuesday night that two electric light poles had broken off near the base on North Front street, near Crown street. On Broadway at Orchard street an electric light wire was blown down. The flag pole in School No. 6 yard was also broken off at the butt.

Chauncey Decker of Albany avenue extension reported to the police that Tuesday afternoon about 4 o'clock while driving through Albany avenue in his Overland car a large limb was torn loose from a tree by the wind and crashed onto his windshield, shattering the glass. Fortunately he escaped being struck by the flying glass.

The storm did not seem to cripple the Kingston Consolidated Railroad and the trolley cars kept close to schedule time throughout the day and evening.

From Pine Hill and other points along the Ulster & Delaware Railroad in the Catskill Mountains came the report Tuesday night of a foot of snow that had fallen during the day. Owing to the high wind the roads had drifted heavily in places, and traffic was unable to get through until the roads were cleared.

Did J. W. Elmore Defraud Bank?

Under Arrest on Grand Larceny Charge In Obtaining $2,000 Loan From Rondout National Bank and Giving Fraudulent Security

In default of furnishing $10,000 bail John W. Elmore, 35 years old, is being held in the county jail awaiting a hearing in police court here on March 13, on a charge of grand larceny in the first degree in obtaining a loan of $2,000 from the Rondout National Bank and giving fraudulent stock as security for the loan. Elmore was arrested Tuesday afternoon in Highland by a Pinkerton detective and turned over to Chief of Police J. Allan Wood early that evening.

Later in the evening Elmore was arraigned in police court before Judge Robert G. Groves, and entered a plea of not guilty. The hearing was adjourned to give the prisoner a chance to obtain the services of a lawyer. The bank was represented by Judge Walter N. Gill.

The warrant for Elmore's arrest was issued on the complaint of Henry Fagher, cashier of the bank, who alleges that on February 28 of this year Elmore obtained a loan of $2,000 and as security for the loan gave what purported to be a certificate issued by the Cuban American Sugar Company for 1,000 shares of a par value of $10 each and a market value of $36 each.

Since making the loan to Elmore the bank has learned that the certificate was false and fraudulent and was not issued by the Cuban American Sugar Company. Through the Associated Bankers the local bank immediately took action and a Pinkerton detective was placed on the case. He arrested Elmore in the office of the Country Club Company at Highland that afternoon and brought his prisoner to police headquarters at the city hall.

It was stated Tuesday night that Elmore deposited the amount of the loan to his account at the bank and had been issuing checks against it until the bank stopped payment on all checks after about $1,200 had been drawn out. It is understood that Elmore is engaged in floating a country club scheme in southern Ulster, and according to the Pinkerton detective Elmore had borrowed about $14,000 from banks in that section of the county.

It is said that Elmore had the stock certificates he used printed in southern Ulster.

When the case comes up for a further hearing it is expected that an interesting story will be developed.

FORGED CHECK IS PASSED AT TANNERSVILLE

Irving Wolper, 21, bought a Buick car of William McGrath, local Buick dealer, at Tannersville on Thursday last. Wolper, said to be from New York, came from this city to Tannersville and looked over the car and was pleased with the bargain. He hadn't the cash but he had a check for $500 on the Corn Exchange Bank of New York city, which Wolper cashed at the Mountain National Bank, Tannersville. The officials did not question the check as the youth's father was a frequent visitor at Tannersville. Attorney Edward Lackey made a trip to New York and found the check to be worthless, the maker's name, Harry Fisher, being forged. Wolper was found at Buffalo, as a Mr. Carnegie. Wolper was taken into custody Monday evening, and it is expected that he will be arraigned in Tannersville this week.

Kingston's Wall Street Gets A Bit Of Nation-wide Advertising

New Store Lights Increase Number of Pedestrians on East Side From 35 Per Cent to 68 Per Cent.

The General Electric Company has recently been advertising in trade papers all over the country very extensively the results of an experiment in store window lighting conducted in Kingston. The advertisements, which feature Kingston and Wall street, are four columns in width, illustrated, and headed "Are you on the wrong side of the street?" Then follows the story of the experiment, as follows:

In your town, just as in every other town, pedestrians show a marked preference for one side of the street.

On Wall street, the main retail district in Kingston, New York, this condition existed. Between theatre hours only 35 per cent of the people used the east side of the street. Then through the courtesy of the Kingston Gas & Electric Company, our engineers were called in. They chose three adjacent stores on the east side of the street, a shoe store, a jewelry store and a drug store in the middle of the block, and a haberdasher's store further down the street. In the show windows they arranged displays and installed new window lighting. Nothing sensational—just good, well-arranged lighting with neither glare nor shadows.

At the end of the first week 52 per cent of the passersby were using the east side, and by the end of the second week this had increased to 68 per cent, or an average for the two weeks of 60 per cent.

But this is not all.

Under the old conditions only 7.2 per cent of passersby stopped at the windows, but during the first week of improved lighting 61.5 per cent stopped and during the second week this rose to 63 per cent.

Good lighting not only drew people to the east side immediately and continued to increase the percentage as it remain installed, but it also stopped over 60 out of every 100 as against 7 out of 100 under former conditions.

This service is free.

If you are located on the wrong side of the street there is no need to change, simply write and one of our representatives will call on you. He can tell you how light properly used can make your side of the street the right side.

Moses Beaten For Delegate

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Manchester, N. H., March 12.—Failure to pledge himself for President Coolidge was today given by political observers as the cause for the defeat of United States Senator George H. Moses, of Concord, in the state wide primary for the election of delegates to the 1924 Republican national convention.

The Republicans elected 11 candidates pledged for President Coolidge while Democrats selected 12 uninstructed delegates for their convention.

Senator Moses was at the end of the ticket by more than 4,000 votes. His closest rival was Captain Frank H. Challis of Manchester, who beat him by 1,000.

Moses had frequently announced himself a Coolidge supporter but declined to pledge himself.

"GET A GOOD GIRL" SAYS YOUTH GONE WRONG

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 12.—"Get yourself a good girl and stick to her and cut out the gang."

This was the advice to modern youth voiced by Walfrid Lillback, 18, minister's son, from his cell in a Brooklyn jail today. "If I had stuck to my girl and not my gang I wouldn't be here," remarked Lillback, who is the son of the Rev. J. J. Lillback, pastor of the Finnish Golgotha Congregational Church.

"I'm guilty of robbery all right," the youth said.

"If there is anything I can tell parents it is to keep their boys from running around with a 'bunch.' A boy, by himself, never thinks of doing wrong. It's when the 'bunch' gets together they plot things. Collective courage will carry a boy on to crime.

"It's true that I always rushed into things without thinking of the consequences. But when I was alone or out with my girl, I never thought of crime."

$385 Verdict For McKittrick

Kossar Sues Gillespie For Damages To Auto—Witnesses Say Gillespie Was Drunk.

The action brought by Robert McKittrick against Alex Campbell to recover money in payment for painting the house of defendant, was completed in supreme court Tuesday afternoon and submitted to the jury. During the afternoon several witnesses and defendant testified. Mr. Campbell testified that the work on the interior trim was not satisfactory and never had been satisfactory. He testified that the woodwork in places had but one coat of varnish and that the varnish applied was of no body and could be scraped off with the finger nail. The paint of the blinds was sticky and had run and paint applied to columns of the porch had become stained with sap from the wood shortly after it had been applied.

Plaintiff claimed that according to his contract he was to stain and fill the interior and apply two coats of varnish. Whether gloss or dull the specifications did not state. Expert testimony introduced was to the effect that when not specified it was taken for granted on contract jobs that gloss was to be used. The architect stated that this was optional with the owner. Plaintiff claims also that when he had started the job and had finished one room with gloss he was told to put on flat finish. This he did. Testimony on the part of plaintiff was to the effect that he knew two coats of flat varnish was not enough to do a first class job on the wood used for interior trim but as flat finish was requested and the contract called for two coats he applied the two coats and did a good job.

Mr. Campbell testified that after an attempt had been made to have the work corrected he had called in Mr. Messinger, who went over the interior trim and for this work he had paid $135.

Besides the contract price which Mr. McKittrick is suing for, he also asked for payment for several extras which were requested by the owner and which are not included in the contract. These extras amount to $66.30.

A verdict in the sum of $385 was awarded plaintiff in the action brought by Robert McKittrick against Alex Campbell. John W. Eckert appeared for plaintiff and H. H. Flemming for defendant. A stay of 30 days was granted and 30 additional days if an appeal is taken.

Another automobile case was taken up for trial. Harry Kossar of Ellenville brings an action against David Gillespie of Pine Bush to recover $390 for damages sustained by plaintiff's car and for loss of service resulting from a collision on July 4, 1923 on the highway between Ulsterville and Walker Valley. There have been several automobile cases arising out of accidents tried at this term of court.

Mr. Kossar operates a hacking service at Ellenville and on the night of July 4 was bringing a party home from Pine Bush when he claims his car was run into by a Chevrolet operated by Mr. Gillespie. Kossar's car was a big Chevrolet. Mr. Kossar claims that the Gillespie car approached at a rapid rate of speed traveling from side to side of the road. Plaintiff claims he turned out into the ditch and stopped. That defendant drove his car into the stationary car causing damage. He also alleges and other witnesses testified that Gillespie had been drinking and was intoxicated at the time of the accident.

Leroy Lounsberry appears for plaintiff and Robert T. Humo of Walden and Frank W. Brooks for defendant.

Straus Has a Bill for Farmer

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, March 12.—Under a bill introduced today by Senator Nathan Straus, Jr., Democrat, of New York, cooperative marketing is provided for the farmers of the state. Senator Straus said the New York state farmers are losing out in the competition with those of other states because of the failure to market their products immediately.

The measure is now a law in 30 states, and as an illustration of its benefits Senator Straus said the apple growers of the northwest are driving New York apples out of the markets in New York state cities, although New York's apple crop is the second in the country.

"Both the farmer, the consumer and the housewife in the city," said Straus, "will benefit by the cooperative marketing act through driving out the middleman. Farmers at present complain that the prices they receive are not enough to keep them on the farm. Meanwhile food stuffs in the city sell for prices that should offer the farmer an ample return for his capital invested and labor. The middleman to whom he rushes to sell and distribute his products eats up the profits."

A similar bill has been introduced in the assembly by Assemblyman Witter, and a hearing on it will be given March 17 by the agricultural committees of the two houses.

Rome, March 12.—Pope Pius XI today appealed to Premier Ramsay MacDonald, of England, to intercede in behalf of the Catholic clergymen imprisoned in Soviet Russia.

Coolidge and Leaders Split

President Demands Congress Jam Through Separate Tax Reduction Resolution—Can't Be Done Say Leaders.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 12.—A definite split, the political consequences of which cannot yet be determined, developed today between President Coolidge and the leaders of his party in congress.

The president has demanded that the Republican leadership wield the whip and drive through congress in four days a separate resolution permitting a deduction of 25 per cent in income tax returns due Saturday.

Harassed at every turn by the coalition of Democrats and insurgents the Republican leadership has bluntly told the White House that such a thing is impossible and that no effort will be made to carry out the president's wishes in this matter.

This was the situation today, with the next move—if there is to be any next move—apparently up to the White House.

The Republican leaders are worried and somewhat resentful, claiming that the president asked them "to do the impossible" and thus put them in an awkward and embarrassing position before the country.

The White House, smarting under a succession of reverses experienced this season, also appeared somewhat resentful. It was pointed out that although the sixty-eighth congress has been in session more than three months not one of the recommendations made by the president in his first message has been enacted into law.

"It is absolutely impossible to pass this reduction resolution before Saturday without unanimous consent," said Representative Green, Republican of Iowa, chairman of the powerful ways and means committee. "And everybody knows that unanimous consent is impossible. There is active and violent opposition to this measure."

Representative Longworth of Ohio, the Republican leader, agreed with Green, as did other of the Republican leaders.

Representative Garner, Democrat, Texas, announced flatly he was opposed to it and he carries almost the solid Democratic strength with him. Add to this Democratic strength that of the insurgents, who hold the numerical balance of power, and it became apparent that there was little hope for what the president asked.

The coalition of Democrats and insurgents are frankly suspicious of the president's resolution. By combining their strength and taking advantage of every Republican weakness they succeeded a few weeks ago in defeating the Mellon bill and writing a new tax bill that "out-Mellon's Mellon" in its reduction of 1924 taxes. And at the same time they wrote into the general tax bill the very provision the president is now insisting upon—permitting those who make returns to deduct 25 per cent on their 1923 returns. It is due to pass within three or four weeks.

The coalition fears that once the administration has jammed through the 25 per cent reduction on 1923 taxes by separate resolution the president would veto the general tax bill which he already has threatened to do on numerous occasions on the ground it strays too far from the rates laid down in the Mellon bill.

Whispers have reached them that the president would do this and then "go to the country" in November on the question of the Mellon bill or the Longworth compromise bill. The president cannot veto part of the general bill and approve part of it. He must take all or nothing and they do not believe he will dare disapprove the entire bill in the midst of campaign merely because it does not afford the relief to large incomes that Mellon demanded.

McLean Admits Fall Loan Fake

"Star Witness" Denies Everything Else—Doesn't Know Doheny or Sinclair—His Stock Deals Netted Him Loss.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 12.—The story of the famous $100,000 loan supposed to have been made by Edward B. McLean, wealthy Washington publisher, to Albert B. Fall at the time that the senate oil investigators were trying to find out where Fall had suddenly acquired that much wealth, was agreed upon between Fall and McLean during a secret meeting in Atlantic City, it was revealed today by McLean himself during a severe cross-examination at the hands of the senate committee.

McLean said he had gone to Atlantic City to see Fall at Mrs. Fall's request. Fall was a sick man, he said.

"He said to me," testified McLean, "'Ned, do you remember our check transaction two or three years ago? Do you mind saying that you loaned me $100,000 in cash? Will you do this for me? I'm in an embarrassing position. Some of my enemies are trying to make it bad for me.'"

"He assured me," McLean went on, "that it had nothing to do with Harry F. Sinclair or Teapot Dome."

"As a result, I said, 'Yes, I will.'"

Subsequently McLean said he sent the committee a telegram saying he had lent Fall $100,000.

"I believed it had nothing to do with Sinclair or Teapot Dome," said McLean. "Fall told me, 'they (the senate committee) are barking up the wrong tree.'"

Then turning to Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, McLean said:

"I made a mistake. It was my fault that I didn't tell you this at Palm Beach."

Washington, March 12.—Edward B. McLean, wealthy newspaper owner, friend and confidant of presidents and high officials in Washington, and author of many of the mysterious code telegrams that have figured in the senate's investigation of the oil scandal, made a sweeping and categorical denial today to the senate investigating committee that he had any connection with or knowledge of the leases which Albert B. Fall made to Harry F. Sinclair and E. L. Doheny.

McLean came forward smiling apparently amused at the excitement his entry crated. He nodded to friends and nodded a "good morning" to the committee. Before being entirely seated, he said:

"I have prepared a statement that I would like to read."

Permission was given and he plunged at once into the reading, droning off the sentences mechanically.

McLean declared he did not know either Doheny or Sinclair and that his relations with Fall were "purely personal." He had previously informed the investigators that he loaned Fall $100,000 and subsequently this testimony was recanted.

The only oil stocks he ever dealt in, McLean said, were those of the Pure Oil Company, in which he made a profit of $5,500.

Before undergoing his examination at the hands of the committee, McLean made a formal statement covering his interests in the famous case, which follows:

"My attention has been called to the fact that the authority of this committee in conducting this investigation is based on senate resolution number 262 as amended by senate resolution number 294, both of which were adopted during the last session of congress.

"In substance this committee is authorized to conduct an investigation of the entire subject of leases upon naval oil reserves. Nothing that is not connected with the leases by the United States government to individual persons or corporations of lands included within the government naval oil reserve is pertinent or relevant to your investigation. I am advised that the proposition cannot be successfully or truthly questioned.

"Having in mind, therefore, the subject of this investigation and having also in mind the widespread use in the public press of my name as one who might have had some connection with the naval oil leases, or with the companies, individuals, government departments or public officials who did have connections with the leases of the naval oil reserves, I want to make now the following detailed and emphatic statement of facts:

"I have absolutely no knowledge regarding any leases upon naval oil reserves made at any time to any person or any company except such knowledge as I, in common with all the rest of the American public, have received from newspaper reports.

"As to the so-called Sinclair leases and companies:

"I never have known anything about any lease of any oil land to the Sinclair company and know nothing today about this except what I have read in the newspapers. I do not know Harry F. Sinclair and have no recollection of ever having met him even in a casual way. I have never had any interest of any kind directly or indirectly, for myself, or any other person, in any of the so-called companies. I did not even know that there was such a thing as the Mammoth Oil Company until I saw it mentioned in the press reports in connection with this investigation. I did know, as anyone who reads newspapers, would have known, that there was a company know as the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Company but I have never had any connection with it or any interest in it, and have never owned any company in anyway connected with it.

"In a word, I had had no knowledge of or connection with Mr. Sinclair's oil lease or his companies or his business or his transactions.

"I do not know Edward L. Doheny, and so far as I am aware I have never seen him in my life. I did not know that he had any connection with any leases upon naval oil reserves until I read of them in the newspapers.

"I do not know the names of Mr. Doheny's companies but I am informed that he is president of the Mexican Petroleum Company and of the Pan-American Petroleum Company and that these companies, like most large oil companies, have branches.

"I have never owned directly or indirectly for myself or in connection with any other person whatever a single share of stock in the Mexican Petroleum Company, the Pan-American Petroleum Company or any of their dependent companies, or so far as I know any company that Mr. Doheny had any interest in or connection with.

"I know nothing about the contract or leases between the government and the Doheny companies.

"Again in brief, I have had no connection with, interest in, or transactions with Edward L. Doheny or any company or business of his at any time in my life."

"Former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall has for several years been a personal friend of mine. My relations with him, have, however, been personal and never official. I have never at any time had any official transactions with the interior department of the United States government.

"As regards the navy department and Secretary Denby, I can say the same as I have already said about the interior department. My personal acquaintance with Secretary Denby has been a very slight one. I have had no business relations whatever with the navy department. The newspapers which I am connected with may have carried some government advertising but of course it would be recognized that this is a matter not handled by me personally.

"Because there have been published indefinite and unfounded rumors from which the inference might be drawn that I had participated in the purchase of oil stocks, I desire to tell you just what stock transactions I have had. Only twice in my life have I bought New York stock exchange stocks and here are the facts about these two transactions:

"In November, 1922, I bought 2,000 shares of Pure Oil stock through Hibbs and Company, of Washington. I sold this stock in February, 1923, through Hutton and Company, Palm Beach, Fla., at a profit of about $5,500. This profit was entirely mine. My understanding is that the Pure Oil Company is a company that has never had any connection with any government leases and is nowise concerned in this investigation.

"In March, 1923, I bought 2,000 shares of Bethlehem Steel through Hutton and Company, Palm Beach, Fla. I sold it through Hibbs and Company in December, 1923, at a loss of approximately $30,000. This loss was entirely mine.

"This is the entire story of any New York exchange stocks ever purchased or sold by me.

"I have never been interested in the purchase of any Sinclair or Doheny oil stocks, directly or indirectly.

"The press has repeatedly carried reports that an important witness was negotiating for immunity from prosecution in consideration of the disclosure by him of sensational facts. The press reports have too clearly indicated that I was that important witness for me not to be sensible to that imputation.

"The facts are:

"First—I have no knowledge of any such facts and therefore could not disclose any to this committee or to any senator or to any other committee or person whatever.

"Second—I have no need for any immunity of any kind and I have neither asked for it nor authorized any person to.

"The only consideration I have sought is that which would excuse me from appearing on the witness stand.

"You have examined with considerable fullness telegraphic correspondence between my employes, my counsel, several of my friends, and myself. I believe that you will agree that those telegrams may be devided into three classes:

"First: Those that brought me

DR. AND MRS. McPARLAN ARE WITH ARCHBISHOP HAYES.

Among those who accompanied Archbishop Hayes, who sailed on the steamer Berengaria from New York city on Saturday for Rome, where the archbishop is expected to be elevated to the cardinalate, were Dr. and Mrs. Thomas McParlan of New York city, who are well known in Kingston.

Dr. McParlan is a classmate of Archbishop Hayes and is his personal physician, as he likewise was physician to the late Cardinal Farley. Mrs. McParlan before her marriage was Miss Mary F. Cummings, who has innumerable friends in Kingston. Archbishop Hayes and his retinue will be absent until about the first of May.

Before they return, Dr. and Mrs McParlan expect to visit Paris and the battlefields of France. Twenty-five hundred passengers were listed on the steamer Berengaria, and there were fully that number of visitors at the pier to bid the distinguished passengers bon voyage. The scene was most impressive.

BARLEYCORN AND BUSINESS

A great honor descended on Ypsilanti, Mich., not long ago. President Harding was choosing ten delegates to represent the United States government at the International Congress Against Alcoholism held in Denmark in August. One of the ten was Mrs. E. L. Calkins of "the town with the queer name."

And thereby hangs a tale. Once upon a time—to begin in the approved fashion—a mutual acquaintance told me of Mrs. Calkins. "Left a widow without income or apparent means of making one," the story commenced, as I recall it. "Nothing to go on except that strenuous determination to meet fate, that Roosevelt standardized among American characteristics."

The immediate way out that she took, escapes my memory. But she didn't run off to Detroit or Chicago or New York on the plea that all the money to be made was piled up in the money centers. She stuck to the people she knew. Somehow she got into real estate.

The strenuous determination grew. So did the money. At the time I heard the story the unencumbered capital was, as I recall it, $20,000 or $30,000.

Here comes in the sequel of the tale. I wrote Mrs. Calkins for the story of her real estate venture.

"I was much amused when I read your letter," she answered. "Bless you, all I've done in real estate is just a sideline. My real job has been fighting John Barleycorn. But I'll see what I can make of it as soon as I find time—if you're sure you want a story on a 'Main Street' scale."

Not unnaturally, she never found time for the story when passports and such more important affairs claimed her time. So here it is with the "sideline" overshadowed by the President's recognition of her value on the main job.

She did not get the appointment through any "pull." She got it because the folks near home, the same folks that she had years before decided were good enough to live with and work with, wanted her recognized. More distant neighbors took up the idea. The state grange, the state women's organizations, the governor and each of his staff, all requested the President to appoint Mrs. Calkins. She had, one might say, the backing of Main Street on the Main Street scale. And it won!

This Will Make Many Women Think

Every woman realizes that the flavor and digestibility of her fried food depend on the fat she uses. For this reason, the modern housewife is anxious to know the source of the fat she uses, and how it is made.

This determination to know the facts is undoubtedly one of the main reasons for the tremendous popularity of Mazola for frying.

It is a pleasant thought, in the kitchen and at the table, to know that the source of Mazola is as good and delicious to eat as Mazola itself.

If you like "corn-on-the-cob" you can't help liking Mazola. For this pure cooking and salad oil is made from the hearts of full-ripened corn—America's Greatest Cereal.

This is why Mazola is known as the absolutely pure vegetable oil—from an edible source. And it is made right in the heart of the big corn belt of the United States, in a clean, sanitary, modern plant. Every can is sealed tight—and you, the consumer, are the first person to touch its contents.

Mazola is not a grease—but a wholesome, easily digested fat. That is why Mazola-fried foods are easy to digest—and free from grease.

Many mothers, realizing the health and food value of Mazola, give a spoonful or two to their growing children.

When you think of frying, think of Mazola—use it once and you will never go back to the old-fashioned, greasy methods of frying.

A PLEASANT THOUGHT

"Mazola is as delicious and good to eat as the corn from which it comes."

[M]arriage Kept Secret for Thirty-Seven Years

The secret of a wedding which took place 37 years ago has been revealed since the death at his home in South Shields, England, of Cleveland Masterman, a cousin of the bishop suffragan of Plymouth.

Masterman's will was proved recently. He left an estate of the gross value of more than $650,000.

Among the bequests was one of $75,000 in trust for life, his wine and furniture and the income from two houses to his housekeeper, Mrs. Martha Mary Ann Broom. It has now become known that "Mrs. Broom" was actually Masterman's wife, says the London Mail.

The marriage took place at the Carlisle register office May 4, 1886. Mrs. Masterman always called herself Mrs. Broom and Mr. Masterman always referred to her as his housekeeper. The marriage was a very happy one.

Of late years only one other living person has been in the secret, Mrs. Masterman's niece, Annie Rebecca Turner, who was one of the witnesses at the wedding.

Masterman was eighty-two years old when he died and his wife is eighty.

Califor[nia] Now Shows [W]haling to Tourists

There is a general belief, cultivated by motion pictures and fictioneers, that whales are peculiar to the Arctic circle, inseparably associated with icebergs, Eskimos, polar bears, igloos, scurvy and huge men so bewhiskered as to resemble water spaniels. All of which is "old stuff," for now that California has gone into the tourist business seriously and whole-heartedly, whaling is merely a week-end party, a sort of post-graduate work in connection with the trout-fishing course, says George Creel in the Elks Magazine, according to the Detroit News.

At Trinidad, a point of land jutting into the Pacific near the California-Oregon line, there is a whaling station of such proportions and activity that it can be smelled for 50 miles on a calm day, while, when the wind is right, distant San Francisco grabs for its handkerchief. Three boats, mostly manned by Norse, Danes and Swedes, ply up and down the coast, and six whales a day is the average catch.

Sports Blouse as Part of Wardrobe

Garment Helps Out Winsome Combinations; Can Be Made at Home.

The blouse has become a very necessary and decorative part of the wardrobe of every well-dressed woman. By clever planning, observes a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star, it may become a half part of two or three costumes, and the better three-quarters of several others.

You may cut the cost of the three described in this article either by making them yourself or by engaging a competent sewing woman to copy them for you.

Here are three correct types: The sports blouse, the costume blouse, and the tunic blouse which transforms any skirt it is worn with into a very up-to-date dress.

The sports blouse may be of dimity. This type of blouse should be worn only with country clothes, a tailored suit, or as part of a businesslike jersey or flannel dress. It may also be of English broadcloth, in which case its scope is enlarged to include the golfing costume and the riding habit.

The costume blouse is the most important part of the three-piece suit, which is worn more than ever. By purchasing a two-piece suit you will not only be more free in your choice of models, but will cut the price also. The most up-to-date model to complete just this sort of ensemble is the monogrammed overblouse of metal cloth, which has been sponsored by several of the most famous Parisian dressmakers. This blouse is expensive at the blouse counters, but could be copied at home.

An original way of applying the monogram is to work out an individual device of one's own, but the majority in evidence are conventional patterns which are easily transferred and embroidered.

The tunic overblouse is a very smart and convenient development of this season's craze for things Chinese. It may be made of crepe to match the lining of your suit, or to harmonize with your costume, or it may be made of satin discreetly trimmed with metal. To be thoroughly in the fashion it should be of satin, either white or black. It should fit easily to the waistline, and flare slightly from the hips down, and it should be trimmed with a touch of metal—the smartest way is in small buttons or narrow lines of metal braid. You will need a yard and a quarter of satin.

Brilliant Colors for Scarfs and Mufflers

The scarfs seen in the shops make a perfect blaze of color. Every conceivable sort of scarf is dyed vividly—the woolen mufflers and wrap-arounds, and the filmy chiffon and lace affairs in many lovely shades. Spanish lace scarfs are particularly effective, dyed deep orange, vermilion, green, blue, violet or flamingo scarlet. These are picturesque, and women love to possess them, if not to wear, to carry or to have about for the grateful note of color.

Charming scarfs light as clouds are cut like a cape or the diagonal fold of a small shawl—a triangle that covers the shoulders well. They are trimmed around the edge with a wide feathery fringe of ostrich of the same shade. One of these sheerest scarfs furnishes just the necessary bit of protection required for the shoulders in a decollete gown at the theater.

Serpent Design for Bracelets and Rings

Startling novelties in the form of a serpent are among the latest ideas for bracelets, rings and girdles. These are made of the pliable metals and give a touch of the picturesque to a gown. They are shown in comparatively inexpensive, though effective, imitations, the better ones in silver and gold, chased in pretty designs, some set in jewels. A serpent in green gold, with brilliants for eyes and small emeralds set in the head, is designated to be worn as a girdle, the sole trimming on an evening gown of heavy "wedding" satin.

Chenille Cloth Used for This Overblouse

Featured at a recent New York fashion exposition was this attractive overblouse made of chenille cloth.

Narrow Bands Used to Trim Center of Frock

Narrow bands of solid color, so often red bands of Chinese ribbon or Beauvais embroidery, are used to trim a frock down the center front and around the bottom. Nail heads on green leather combine admirably with black kasha or rep. Green quite outshines other colors this season and even competes with black.

A flat back is still the role and aprons in every conceivable form trim the front. There are limitless possibilities where a combination of fabrics may be employed and thus with evening dresses the designer takes full sway of his imagination.

Two outstanding novelties among recent imports are worth noting and when well handled offer a suggestion and a possibility to one who wishes to add a very new note to a straight line frock of wool rep. The one is merely the application of rows of black cire braid, about three-quarter inches width. Alternating stripes of the braid applied in parallel lines with stripes where the braid was interlaced in simple basket weave emphasized the pencil silhouette. The other suggestion was an apron of fine braiding on georgette in the same tone as the dress itself. A plaiting of the georgette lined the cuff in mushroom style.

Sleeves, instead of being long and tight with a flare cuff, quite often reveal below the elbow beige chiffon or ecru lace and net as a sort of under sleeve, a puffing as it were, which is fitted in snugly at the wrist by a band of the fabric. Plaitings of net often insert themselves along the outside opening and from thence around the hand to break the severity.

Lace and Feathers Are Features of New Fans

There is always something new and artistic in fans. The most elegant fan seen among the Paris novelties is very large, with mother-of-pearl sticks and a platinum loop handle set with diamonds. The fan itself is covered with old-rose point lace, and at one side is fastened a spray of pale green ostrich feathers, the shade of which is mirrored in the pearl of the framework, which forms an oval as it opens.

Another fan in which one visualizes a grand dame of the Faubourg, is of medium size, opens in arch form, and is made of exquisitely fine chantilly lace upon a tortoise-shell frame. There is a tracing of fine gold on the outer ribs, the handle is of gold and the rivets are set with emeralds.

The handsome fans are not now covered with feathers, but have ostrich feather in sprays or delicate fringe interlaced with the covering, tracing a pattern or finishing the edge. These are fairy-like and fantastic, and add a whimsical note to the most elaborate evening toilet.

Many Bags and Cases for Stylish Dressers

It is good fun to follow the styles in bags and cases, the changes are so swift and the fancies so many. With some of his newest models in evening gowns and wraps a Paris maker has sent over an evening "vanity" of black moire, lined with orchid silk, which holds in addition to the usual toilet equipment a tiny pair of opera glasses. The clasp and fittings of this case are of gold.

A day-time bag from the same house is larger, of black moire with silver frame, and contains a place for spectacles or lorgnon, a comb for bobbed locks, and a coin purse. Another maker reverses the usual order and lines his silk purse bags with patent leather. Some of the largest bags for street dress are made of the pretty colored leathers, with the clasp and monogram upon a little flap in gold, silver or platinum.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MARCH 12, 1921

THE EARLY AMERICANS.

The comments of English travelers on American life and manners in the earlier times were by no means critical and unappreciative in all or most cases. Quotation from the comments of Charles Dickens, Harriet Martineau and Mrs. Trollope have given American readers this impression, but a much modified view of the matter may be obtained from a recently published book entitled "American Social History, as Recorded by British Travelers," edited by Allan Nevins For example, John Bernard, a friend and companion of Sheridan and Fox, who visited this country in 1798, is quoted as saying that America had "a true nobility" based only on "merit," and as citing in illustration Mr. Carroll, the wealthy planter of Maryland, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, from the "refinement"of whose "manners" a stranger "would have surmised that he had spent all his days in the salons of Paris." The same traveller confessed that he was charmed by Annapolis, where "all the best Philadelphia and Virginia society was concentrated."

Captain Marryat, a soldier under Nelson, author of "Midshipman Easy" etc, who visited this country in 1838, wrote of "the Bath of America," White Sulphur Springs in Virginia, as follows.

Spa in its palmiest days when princes had to sleep in their carriages at the doors of the hotels was not more in vogue than are these white sulphur springs, with the elite of the United States. And it is here, and here only, in the States that you meet what may fairly be considered a select society, for at Washington there is a great mixture. Of course, all the celebrated belles of the different States are to be met here, as well as all the large fortunes. I never was at any watering place in England where the company was so good and so select as at the Virginia springs in America

The more critical Harriet Martineau, who came in 1835, agreed with Captain Marryat that Washington society was mixed "It is in Washington," she wrote, "that varieties of manners are conspicuous. There the Southerners appear to the most advantage, the New Englanders to the least." But the appreciative John Bernard mentioned above, discussing "the difference between the inhabitants of New England and the Southern States," quotes ex-President George Washington as saying in his presence of the New Englander: "I esteem those people; they are the stamina of the Union and its greatest benefactors. They are continually spreading themselves, too, to settle and enlighten less favored quarters. Dr. Franklin is a New Englander."

Another British observer, William Corbett, wrote with enthusiasm of the efficiency of the American farmhand in 1819 as follows: "These Americans are the best I ever saw. They mow four acres of oats, wheat, rye or barley in a day, and with a cradle lay it so smoothly in swaths that it is tied up in sheaves with the greatest neatness and ease. Every man can use an axe, saw and hammer, very few indeed who cannot kill and dress pigs and sheep, and many of them oxen and calves. All are ploughmen In short, a good laborer can do anything that is to be done upon the farm."

THE "HUMAN" WASHINGTON.

In the reaction against the earlier tendency to make a sort of demigod of the first President, modern writers have made much of the fact George Washington had a keen eye for business, made wise investments and died worth a quarter of a million dollars, the richest American of his time. But as all his dealings were above reproach, this is nothing to his discredit in the view of any one and much to his credit in the view of not a few. More recently it has been shown that Washington also had a keen eye for female beauty—for it appears that unearthed diaries of his are still being published. We find the following quotations from and references to his diary of his Southern tour while President in the spring of 1791:

At Wilmington, N. C., 62 ladies were counted by him and duly entered in his summary of the day's events. "Abt. 70 ladies were present" at New Berne. At a dance in Charleston, S. C., "256 elegantly dressed & handsome ladies" were counted, while at a second dance in that proud city he observed "at least 400, the number and appearance of wch. exceeded anything of the kind I had ever seen"

All this is diverting as well as interesting, but it adds rather than detracts from the fame of the great soldier, statesman and father of his country, merely showing that, after all, George Washington was desirably normal and "human." It is rather amusing that he should "count" and record the actual number of the fair sex gathered to greet him, but nobody, least of all "the ladies," will think any the less of him for that.

DOUBLE THE WORK.

A patient came to his physician in great distress

His history was about as follows

He worked in an office where there were a great many other employes. Quite a number were doing exactly the same kind of work as himself. However, where before he was able to accomplish as much work as any of the others, he now found that he was hardly as good as the average, just a little below in fact.

He had always done office work and was only thirty-five years of age. His employers said nothing. In fact when he stayed away a day or two on account of his "nerves, they were very sympathetic in the matter and advised him that perhaps he was working too hard.

"Now doctor," he said, "as a matter of fact I don't think I'm working too hard, do you?"

The doctor said "Yes, you are working too hard, but not for your firm."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, you are a natural born worrier. You are over conscientious about anything You'd go back to the office at midnight if you thought you had made one little slip. You worry about your wife's health, your own health, the possibility of your losing your position. Am I right?"

"Yes," answered the patient

"Well you can't work day and night and expect to do justice to your work at the office. All this intense thought, worry, imaginings, are wearing out your nervous system, just the same as if you were doing hard mental work. You are an accountant. You have to concentrate on your work at the office because you can't afford to make mistakes. Perhaps during your work in the office your mind will go off on some of these things that are worrying you Your office work is not so efficiently, or so quickly done under such circumstances

Then when you come home there is no mental rest, because your mind goes off and works just as hard on these "self" problems as it does at your work, perhaps even harder

So you see you are really working harder than some of your fellow employes, but it doesn't turn out as much "office work."

"What shall I do?"

"You don't need medicine. Just summon your common sense to your help. It will show you what a mistake you are making in trying to do 'mental work day and night.

YOUNG CALVES LIKE GRAIN GROUND FINE

The kind and amount of grain fed a young calf has much to do with its vigor and growth. Most calves will get interested in the grain box when two or three weeks old. Grain is a cheaper feed than whole milk so the calf should be encouraged to eat it at an early age.

About the time the change is made from whole milk to skim milk, some grain should be placed before the calf. If grain is left in the feed box all the time, it is likely to become stale. Calves should have only what they will clean up in one feeding. Feeding grain immediately after the skim milk will help to prevent the calves from sucking each other.

Young calves prefer grain finely ground, but older calves like it coarsely ground. After the calves are two or three months old, whole grains may be satisfactorily fed. A calf will consume two to three pounds of grain daily when three months old if fed twice a day, and usually more if allowed grain at will.

Such feeds as corn, oats, barley and kafir are excellent calf feeds. A good mash can be made from equal parts of ground corn and oats. Wheat bran may be substituted for ground oats if oats are not available. Equal parts of bran, ground corn and oats make a good feed. Oilmeal added to the ration tends to keep the calves sleek and in good condition.

Calves will begin to eat small quantities of hay about the time they take an interest in the grain. For calves eight to ten weeks old, red clover or mixed hay is recommended in preference to alfalfa hay, due to the latter often causing intestinal trouble. Legume hays are very palatable and contain a large amount of protein and mineral matter which are necessary for growing animals.

Good quality corn silage may be fed when the calf is three months old or older. Only the finer parts of fresh silage should be fed. Do not allow it to lie around in the manger until spoiled.

Well-Designed Barn Has Much Advertising Value

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

A well-designed attractive dairy barn has an appreciable advertising value, especially when the owner derives a portion of his income from the sale of surplus animals. The cost of a new barn, however, should not go beyond the point where the interest on the investment, plus depreciation, will become an excessive overhead load.

Some of the other factors to consider in building are climate, topography, drainage, location relative to other buildings, size and state of the dairyman's business, fire risk, materials available for construction, and local regulations covering the production, handling and disposal of milk. Farmers' Bulletin 1342, Dairy Barn Construction, just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, answers many of the questions suggested above. It gives correct principles of construction of dairy barns; plans of one and two-story buildings; and details of the construction of windows, ventilating flues, cow stalls, floors and drainage systems.

This bulletin may be obtained, while the supply lasts, upon application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Every Dairy Cow Should Have Rest of Six Weeks

Every dairy cow should be "dried off" for at least six weeks before calving and it is the practice of all up-to-date dairymen to so treat the cows. It is accomplished by milking her only every other time for a few days, lengthening the intervals until there are practically no strippings. Reduce the food during the drying-off period. Rub camphorated oil under the udder each night and morning if milk secretion persists.

Inexpensive Powder for Killing Lice on Cattle

Cows rub their necks? Act as if they had bugs? Probably they have. Get a good louse powder. Usually the trouble is local and the whole hide doesn't need to be treated. The best and cheapest powder is made from three pounds of flowers of sulphur, one pound of sabadilla powder and a half pound of insect powder. Mix well and put in an old pepper shaker. Sabadilla should be asked for first because some drug stores don't keep it in stock.

Box Stalls Recommended for Maximum Production

Cows kept in box stalls produce more milk and slightly more butterfat than those kept in stanchions, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, but the slight increase in product does not balance the added expense for space, bedding, and labor. Box stalls are to be recommended only when maximum production is desired regardless of expense, as in testing cows for records.

Two Dead in New York Fire

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 12.—Stephen Kluback and his wife, Anna, are dead, while their two sons, John, 8, and Benjamin, 5, are in a critical condition, the result of a fire, which early today swept their apartment in a five-story dwelling at 154 Ridge street.

Police are seeking a man thought to have started the blaze as a means of revenge against Kluback.

The fire originated outside the door of the Kluback apartment on the top floor of the dwelling. Oil had been poured over the steps leading to the apartment, as well as over the Kluback door.

More than 150 persons, residents in the house, were driven to the wind and rain swept streets by the blaze.

Fire Marshal John Brophy at first believed the blaze was caused by the explosion of a still. Brophy was told by neighbors of Kluback that a man known to have been Kluback's enemy, threatened his life last week.

"I'm going to kill Steve—I've got to do it, for he shattered my future," Brophy quoted this man as saying. The name of the suspect was kept secret.

When discovered the blaze had eaten its way completely through the Kluback apartment. Mrs. Kluback was evidently burned to death before she could be awakened. Kluback, hearing the crackling of the flames, fought his way to the side of his two sons, in bed in an adjoining room. The father evidently became crazed from the pain of his burns and jumped from a five story window. He died an hour later calling for his wife, whom he did not know was dead.

Firemen rescued the two children and took them to the hospital. Slight hope was held out for their recovery.

Kluback, a tailor, was 37 years old and his wife 28.

MEMEL COMMISSION MAKES ITS REPORT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Geneva, March 12.—The Baltic commission headed by Norman Davis, of Boston, today recommended to the League of Nations council that Memel should be placed under the sovereignty of Lithuania, reserving certain economic rights for Poland. The commission has just completed a long examination of the Memel dispute.

Memel was a German city before the war. It was decided at the Versailles peace conference that Memel should be turned over to the Allies for future disposition. Both Poland and Lithuania claimed the port. In January 1923, a detachment of Lithuanian troops occupied the city and claimed it in the name of Lithuania.

Churches Gain 680,000 in Year

Religious Census Shows Notable Progress, Which Brings Total Membership in U. S. Up to 45,457,366—Evangelical Groups Gain 493,161.

The following is a summary of the annual census of religions compiled for the Christian Herald by H. K. Carroll:

A year of great activity in various lines of church work was that of 1923, especially in the gathering and administration of vast funds for missionary, educational and benevolent purposes. If the net increase of church members, certainly not the least important of the aims of the churches, is somewhat smaller than that of the previous year, it is still well on toward the eight hundred thousand of 1922. The grand total for all religious bodies has now crossed the 45,000,000 line and passed nearly to the half-way stage to 46,000,000. If the significant fact be kept in mind that the evangelical churches, which constitute the largest of the groups, having sixty per cent of the aggregate of church members, have changed their evangelistic methods almost completely in the last decade, the gains of the year, though the percentage is small, yet show a healthy growth.

The grand totals for all religious bodies are 45,457,366 communicants, 206,843 ministers, and 237,404 churches, indicating gains for 1923 of 680,015 communicants, 2,733 ministers and 2,884 churches.

Selecting first the Evangelical bodies which exist as families of two or more members, we have this showing of totals and increases:

Free Christian Church	6,225	.....
Five other bodies	28,971	3,029
	1,734,239	28,140

d—decrease.

This makes an aggregate for the two evangelical groups of 27,812,898 communicants, and an increase of 493,161 in 1923. One who has been reading in the daily and religious press of the controversy over Fundamentalism and Modernism, might inquire how it has affected the membership of the churches in which it has appeared to be the most tense. In the Northern Baptist body, where eight or nine points of difference have been attracting attention for some years, if it has had any effect at all it has resulted in a large increase than usual—17,043, in 1922, the latest official figures. In the Presbyterian Church (Northern) where presbyteries and General Assembly have taken cognizance of five points of difference, the net increase has likewise been larger than in the previous year. In the Protestant Episcopal Church, where the struggle over the Apostles' Creed has been strenuous, the increase is about as usual.

On the other hand, the Methodist Episcopal Church, which has been an undisturbed onlooker at the tussle between the disputants in the sister churches, has suddenly dropped from an increase of over 89,000 in 1922, to considerably less than half as many in 1923. And the Unitarians and Universalists, who might be expected to profit by accessions of Modernists, report respectively a decrease of 16 ministers and 8 churches, and of 45 ministers and 199 churches.

The small increase in the Methodist group, only 87,683, is due mainly to the unusually slim gain of the Methodist Episcopal Church—33,635. The gains in its foreign mission field, where it has 531,000 members, were greater than those at home—39,486.

Of the Baptist group, the largest, the Southern Baptist Convention, has been growing by leaps and bounds. In the last five years it has added more than 700,000 to its membership, and is the largest white denomination in the South. The National Baptist Convention, consisting of two colored organizations reported as one, has far outstripped all other colored denominations in its growth, having considerably over 3,000,000 members. In 1922, however, it reported heavy losses, due to the negro migration northward, and the failure of many to transfer their membership. The loss of members of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church for 1923 is due to the same cause. Two other Methodist bodies, the African Methodist Episcopal and the African Methodist Episcopal Zion have reported little growth in the past decade, and are represented in the accompanying tables by the unchanged figures of 1922.

A new body, the Assemblies of God, has come almost suddenly into notice as a growing organization. Represented in our tables two years ago as having 10,000 members, it now reports 70,000. It is an energetic, evangelistic body, formed by the union of evangelistic and pentecostal bodies, holding to the doctrine of sanctification. Its increase in 1923 was 200 ministers, 69 churches, and 10,000 members. It is wide-spread, including most of the country from Pennsylvania west and south.

Two other groups, the Roman Catholic and the Eastern Orthodox, both show large totals and considerable gains—the former of 15,750,260 increase 138,616; the latter of 64,745, increase 21,506. The Roman Catholic Church, alone, is and has been for years, by far the largest religious body we have in this country. The figures represent, as nearly as can be estimated, the communicant strength of the Church of the United States. Most of the countries and languages of Europe are represented in its constituency. This is also true of the Eastern Orthodox group, which also takes in the ancient Bible lands of Greece and Turkey and Syria in Asia.

Changes in the number of ministers are very general among nearly all the churches, decreases are numerous and often puzzling, the net gain for the year being 2,733 in a total well on to 207,000.

The column of gains of churches is also well starred with decreases, but there is a net gain of nearly 3,000 in place of a net loss of 1,600 in 1922.

The United States is becoming increasingly a polyglot nation. Nearly all the languages of Europe are spoken among our people, and as the inhabitants of Western Europe and of Eastern Asia come in increasing numbers the religions of that section of the world have larger representation here. One can find in our borders almost all the varieties of Christianity, ancient and modern, that the world has produced, including the ancient forms preserved by the Church of Rome, the Hellenic Church, the Armenian, the Syrian, the variation known as the Syrian Antiochian body, whose headquarters are at Antioch, where the disciples were first called Christians, and some cults which are exclusively our own. No nation in the world offers such a variety of faiths from which one may choose. As yet the Abyssinian Church has, so far as known, no organization here, but the followers of Mohammed, the Arabian Prophet, are to be found in some of our great centers. The great pagan faiths of Asia have but little representation in the New World as yet, and among the churches of the Christian and Jewish religions are to be found none such as have stood in the East through centuries as the resort of multitudes of worshippers of the many gods that Asia has produced.

Found Dead in Woman's Sedan

Auto Salesman Had Sold Mrs. Gaertner Car in Which He Was Found With Bullet Through Head.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, March 12.—Death was a sudden visitor at a party for two shortly before dawn today and Mrs. Belle Gaertner, pretty divorcee, was held while police sought to learn how Walter Law, 35, her companion, was killed. His body, a bullet through the head, was found in Mrs. Gaertner's sedan in the street where the woman lived. She was arrested in her home.

Mrs. Gaertner is the divorced wife of William Gaertner, prominent manufacturer of scientific instruments, who was her second husband. Law was an automobile salesman, and met the woman through his sale to her of the car in which he met his death.

Police said she admitted she had been drinking. In the car was found an empty gin bottle and Mrs. Gaertner's pistol, which she said she had given Law "for protection." It held one exploded shell.

"We were on our way home when this thing happened. I don't know how," she told police. "Walter was driving and all of a sudden he dropped forward over the wheel as I heard a shot.

"He was bleeding and I tried to stop the flow of blood. That's how my clothes came to be stained.

"Then he was still and I was scared. The car had stopped in the middle of the street. I got out and went home."

Police found the emergency brakes of the car set. There was no bullet hole in the windshield or windows of the car.

Better Homes Aim of Nation-Wide Drive Headed by Prominent Women; Ownership for Wage-Earners Urged

To promote better homes throughout the United States for families of small incomes that must make both ends meet is one of the outstanding aims of Better Homes in America, recently incorporated as a national educational institution, with Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, as president, and James Ford, national housing specialist, as executive director.

Associated with the organization in its effort to make attractive homes available for wage-earners and for families of rural sections as well as for those of cities and towns, are some of the best-known women of the United States. Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the new Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture was recently appointed a member of the advisory council of Better Homes in America. Miss Lida Hafford, Director of Headquarters of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has given notable service as a member of the advisory council since the inception of the Better Homes in America movement. Mrs. W. C. Martin, Chairman of the Women's Division of the Federation of Farm and Home Bureaus, and Mrs. Charles Schuttler, former chairman, both members of the advisory council of Better Homes in America, are particularly interested in the improvement of rural homes.

May 11-18 has been set aside as Better Homes week, and in these seven days hundreds of communities in every part of the nation will carry on Better Homes demonstrations, as a vivid means of educating the public in methods of home betterment. Demonstration houses this year will feature such homes as are available for families of modest means.

Better Kitchen contests, home beautification contests, demonstrations of labor-saving house-hold equipment, and exhibitions of home libraries, home play and home music, are mentioned as possible features for demonstrations in rural sections. Another possibility for farm communities is the progressive demonstration, in which several homes of the community will combine as demonstration houses, each of them showing one salient feature essential in an attractive and well-equipped rural home.

President Coolidge, who heads the advisory council of Better Homes in America, recently issued an endorsement of the movement, urging participation in the Better Homes demonstrations upon communities throughout the United States.

"We need attractive, worthy permanent homes that lighten the burden of housekeeping," declared President Coolidge. "We need homes in which home life can reach its finest levels, and in which can be reared happy children and upright citizens."

COW ENGAGEMENTS

"Moo, moo," said Mrs. Cow, "it is not everyone who has two engagements every day."

"Moo, moo," said Miss Cow, "I don't suppose it is, but what do you mean by that, Mrs. Cow?"

"Yes, moo, moo," said Mrs. Brown Cow, "what do you mean by that?"

"What do you mean by that, moo, moo," said Mrs. Brown-and-White Cow.

"Tell me too," said Mrs. Brown-Spot Cow, "moo, moo, tell me too."

"And I want to he ," said Mrs. Black Cow. "Moo, moo, I want to hear."

"We all want to hear," said the other cows as they sat in the pasture and looked at Mrs. Cow.

"I haven't had a chance to speak," said Mrs. Cow, "and explain what I meant as yet."

"Moo, moo," said Miss Cow, "that is the truth. She hasn't had a chance to speak."

"True, moo, moo," said Mrs. Brown Cow. "Very true."

"That is the case," said Mrs. Brown-and White Cow. "We haven't given her a chance to speak. We must give her a chance to speak."

"We must surely give her a chance to speak, moo, moo," said Mrs. Brown-Spot-Cow.

"We must," said Mrs. Black Cow, "moo, moo, we must."

"Yes, give her a chance to speak, moo, moo," all the other cows said.

"But instead of talking about it," said Mrs. Cow, "really give me the chance to speak."

So all the cows kept still and Mrs. Cow, chewing her cud as she talked, said:

"Some people may be invited out once a week to dinner, or maybe they have a dinner party at home, or maybe they're asked out to supper once or twice in a week or so.

"What Do You Mean by That?"

"Some may be invited to one party in a week or one party in a month.

"But twice a day we Cows have important engagements. Twice a day we must be milked and so I say it is very superior to be a cow and to have these two important engagements each day.

"If we wander off into the woods beyond or way, way over yonder hill, the farmer or his son will come after us as though to say:

"'You must have forgotten but it is milking time and you must come along.'"

"Perhaps," said Mrs. Black Cow, "we might say the farmer had two engagements each day."

"That's not the same," said Mrs. Cow. "For he could send his son or he could send a hired man—he doesn't have to come himself.

"Whereas we cows really have these two important engagements each day.

"But now I must rest. I thought all that up myself, and my poor cow brain is weary and tired now. I think I will have a nap or a day-dream."

"She thought up something quite fine," said Mrs. Brown Cow.

"She did, moo, moo," said Mrs. Black Cow.

"She did, moo, moo," said Mrs. Brown-and-White Cow.

"Most certainly she did, moo, moo," said Mrs. Brown-Spot Cow.

"I agree that she did, moo, moo," said Miss Cow.

And all the other cows looked at each other, chewed slowly and said:

"Not half-bad for a cow!"

Little Willie Had Him

The great Thurston was producing eggs from a hat. With his characteristic humor, he addressed a boy in the front row.

"Your mother can't get eggs without hens, can she?"

"Oh, yes," quickly replied the boy.

"How's that?" nervously asked the conjurer.

"She keeps ducks," chuckled the youngster.—Exchange.

Noise Wins

"What does the professor of Greek get?"

"Oh, about $3,000 a year."

"And the football coach?"

"About $12,000 a year."

"Quite a discrepancy."

"Well, did you ever hear 40,000 people cheering a Greek recitation?"

WHAT THE FAMILY WILL LIKE

Meat bills may be reduced by using the cheaper cuts and cooking them in such a manner that all the flavor and juices are retained.

Pepper Pot.—Take a knuckle of veal and one and one-half pounds of honeycomb tripe. Cook the veal with a tablespoonful of salt, two large sliced onions, six allspice, ten peppercorns, two bay leaves, one tablespoonful of marjoram, one tablespoonful each of sweet basil and thyme, one hot red pepper, all tied in a small bag, the red pepper cut into small pieces. Simmer for two hours or until the veal is tender. Remove the veal from the stock. Cut the tripe which has been washed in salt water and then in soda water and cut in julienne strips. Simmer in the stock for one hour. Add two large potatoes cut into dice and add egg balls the size of marbles made by beating an egg and adding flour to make a dough stiff enough to roll in the hands. Cook for half an hour longer, then thicken with two tablespoonfuls of fat blended with three tablespoonfuls of flour. Cook until well blended and serve hot. The veal may be chopped, or part of it, and added to the dish. This will serve ten portions.

Chocolate Cream Pie.—Line a deep pie plate with plain paste, wet the edge and put on a half-inch rim. Prick with a fork and bake in a hot oven. Prepare a filling by mixing five tablespoonfuls of cornstarch with one-half cupful of sugar and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Dilute with one-fourth cupful of cold milk, add two cupfuls of scalded milk and cook over hot water for half an hour, stirring often. Melt two squares of chocolate, add four tablespoonfuls of hot water, stir until smooth and add to the mixture. Remove from the stove, fold in the whites of two eggs beaten stiff, flavor with a teaspoonful of vanilla. While still hot pour into the pie just as the crust comes from the oven. Serve cold covered with whipped unsweetened cream.

Make Money From Ferns

The unobstrusive, almost forgotten carpet of the Green mountain forest, promises to bring back a measure of prosperity to a group of the most impoverished of the back hill towns of southern Vermont. Probably 100,000,000 ferns have been taken from the green hillsides and deep forest recesses of the narrow strip of back hill country in Windham and Bennington counties in the last few months. The income to declining rural villages from this harvest of the wilds that took no sowing has amounted to almost $200,000, says the Detroit News. Whole families pick for the 14 weeks' season, and make a year's income.

Fern picking is crowding the maple sugar business for leading place among the profit-bringing side enterprises of rural life along one ridge of the Green mountains.

Value of Oyster Fishery

Oyster culture represents the most valuable fishery in the United States. The 1920 yield approximated 30,000,000 bushels, having a valuation of $15,000,000 to fishermen. The latest inventory as to the magnitude of the industry in personnel and equipment employed for twelve months, indicated that 67,257 persons were thus engaged, drawing wages aggregating $10,876,801, using vessels and apparatus appraised at $17,000,000. Ninety-nine per cent of the oysters are taken from the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, Maryland, Virginia and Connecticut, in the order named, having foremost ranking in yields. It is said that Chesapeake bay gives up more oysters than any other body of water in the world. Virginia and Maryland, through which this huge pond navigates, produce 5,000,000 bushels of oysters each annually. Connecticut is credited with an output of 4,000,000 bushels.

Cantilever Shoe

Develops Your Arches

WEAK arches are usually the result of lack of foot exercise.

In ordinary stiff-shank shoes, your arch muscles become weakened from disuse. In flexible arch shoes, such as Cantilevers, you get just enough support under the arch, while allowing the arch muscles strengthening exercise. Your foot arch then becomes self supporting. You'll feel better, more contented, more comfortable in Cantilever Shoes.

I Offer Girls

My aids to beauty, and to woman youth

By Edna Wallace Hopper.

I had a rich, ambitious mother. She searched the world with me to find the supreme beauty helps.

They made me a famous beauty. And now, after 40 years in the limelight, they keep me a beauty still.

Other girls, in these same ways, can multiply their beauty. Other women can, to old age, keep their youthful bloom. I want to help them do so. The very helps that France gave me are now at your command.

I am very—very busy on the stage. But I am taking time to tell you the secrets of my beauty and my youth. And I hope the time will come when girls and women by the millions will enjoy what I enjoy.

32 helps in four

I found 32 things that women need to keep them at their best. French experts combined them in four applications. Thus beauty and perennial youth were made very easy for me.

One is my White Youth Clay. Not like the crude and muddy clays so many use today. This clay is white, refined and dainty. Twenty years of scientific study have made it amazingly efficient.

I use White Youth Clay to purge my skin of all that clogs or mars it. It gives me that rosy, baby-like complexion. Blackheads or pimples, oiliness or blemishes are unknown to me.

It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, keeps the face skin ever like a girl's.

One application of my White Youth Clay brings almost unbelievable results. Many women seem to drop ten years. Continued use does marvels, as it did for me. No girl or woman who once tries this clay will ever go without it. The price is 50 cents and $1.

Two matchless creams

My Youth Cream is a cold cream, based on lemon and strawberry. It is made to embody all the best that science knows to whiten, feed, protect and smooth the skin. I use it after the clay. It is also my night cream, to apply on retiring. Daytimes I use it as a powder base. No one ever found a cold cream to compare with my Youth Cream.

My Facial Youth is a liquid cleanser. It contains no animal, no vegetable fat. It cannot assimilate in any way with the skin. But it penetrates the skin to the depths. When I wipe it off, all that clogs the skin comes with it. No other method cleans a skin like this.

Luxuriant hair

My hair is thick and lustrous. It grows finer every year. I have never had falling hair or dandruff, never a touch of gray.

This is due to my Hair Youth, another French creation. I apply it daily with an eye dropper, directly to the scalp. It takes but a moment, and it does not muss the hair. I can do no greater kindness than to urge you to employ it. It costs 50 cents and $1.

All druggists and toilet counters supply these products which I use. The price is small. Every girl or woman, if she will, can have the benefits I got. Go find them out. My Beauty Book comes with each. Edna Wallace Hopper, 530 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

Admit Spellman Will to Probate

County Judge Joseph M. Fowler as acting surrogate has admitted to probate the last will and testament of Richard T. Spellman, late of the village of Saugerties. Mr. Spellman died in November 1, 1922, and by his will provided a trust fund of $10,000 for Thomas R. Spellman, a son, and then devised the balance of his estate to various cousins and charitable institutions. When the will came up for probate a contest arose and the Surrogate's court certified certain questions to the supreme court for determination. Three trials were had, one becoming a mistrial by reason of the distribution of a pamphlet of a religious nature one of which fell in the hands of a juror. At the trial in supreme court in December, 1923, Justice Staley directed a verdict in favor of the proponents. Chris J. Flanagan is attorney for the proponent and executor; Frank W. Brooks, John J. Barrett, Jr., represented various legatees; William D. Brianier, Jr., and John W. Eckert were attorneys for the contestants.

WHAT THEY ARE WEARING IN PALM BEACH

Fur bordered frocks continue to be worn.

For daytime the furs most in evidence are leopard and wildcat.

White cloth coats are collared with white furs, fox and ermine.

Very few black evening gowns are seen.

Shoes begin to have a more tailored look but are not flat heeled.

Pink is a color in great favor.

Unrelieved white is seldom seen.

Embroidered scarfs are made of crepe or wool.

Buttons are used on middies which are made on the lines of masculine underwear.

The entire trend is toward the boyish mode. Two-piece costumes are more numerous than one piece.

Prints appear seldom except in Oriental types.

Stripes register when there is an attempt to strike a new note.

White velvet has been recognized as one of the most popular fabrics for evening wear.

Princess Christian, of Hesse, wears white velvet.

Dresses of white velvet are seen at every gathering.

Blue hats and scarfs, also two-piece dresses and suits.

Many dresses laced instead of buttoned.

Lace hems, contrasting or dyed to match.

Much metal lace and cloth for evening.

Also many beads, particularly crystal bugles.

Sheer dresses with matching scarfs.

Black bathing suits seem to be the choice of the smartest.

Leopard bound hats are numerous.

A small bell shaped felt is yellow in the front and has wide bands from side to side, one black and one white.

The appointment by President Coolidge of Samuel Knight, prominent San Francisco lawyer, to prosecute the oil lease frauds on the Pacific Coast, is likely to be opposed in the Senate by Senator Wheeler.

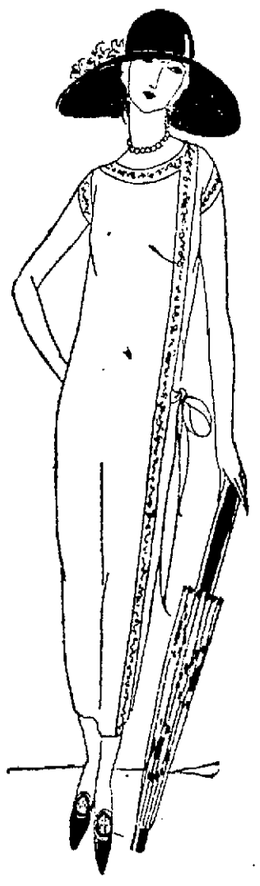
PLAIN MATERIALS ARE ELECTED TO SMARTNESS

(By Eleanor Gunn).

The vote of women when it comes to fabrics, results in the election of plain over printed materials. Reports of many brocades may appear to give a certain vagueness to this statement, but regarding fashions by daylight, the impression is that prints have lost rather than gained during their year or more in power.

Plain surfaces are broken by applique, embroidery, beading and sometimes by printing, but fashionists do not look forward to a spring gay with prints, as was the case last spring and summer here and abroad.

The greatest transformation, however has to do with the substitution of a sheen for a dull finish, applying to a certain extent, to cloth as well as silk. Broadcloths are satiny in surface and flannels and cotton broadcloth have a certain smoothness. One rather credits the Parisian success with alpaca to the creation of a demand for smoothness and for polish.



Gone are the fuzzy tweeds and spongelike fabrics of other seasons and in their place are rougher or smoother surfaces. Palm Beach lauds the flannel dress in middy lines and approves smooth silks and satin crepes and lustrous taffetas, if they are striped or plaid. And while alpaca has not reached the pinnacle of success achieved abroad, enough smart women are either wearing or ordering costumes of alpaca to refute any theory which may exist concerning a prejudice against it.

Dainty printed chiffons are never entirely absent at a Palm Beach gathering, but they are outnumbered by a overwhelming majority.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble You can stop them with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to serious complications.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Truth Stranger Than Fiction

Here is the scale of scales, so sensitive and delicate that the weight of a man's breath will throw it out of balance Fingers must not touch it, for the moisture left by the contact would upset its accuracy. The man who uses it must manipulate it (as shown in the photograph) from another room; the heat from his body would affect it at closer range.

And so responsive is the delicate instrument that if it be raised but two inches it answers the lessened attraction of gravity by showing a lesser weight for the object in its pan. Even more sensitive than that, this instrument will show the change if one of the weights is placed on top of the other in the pan. To get correct results, the tiny weights must be placed side by side.

The scale was built for the government and is housed in the laboratory of the Bureau of Standards at Washington, D. C It is protected against the slightest change of temperature, truly a hothouse affair for a breath of wind would cause contraction somewhere in the delicate rods and probably result in error.

Scientists use this instrument when they want to weigh things almost as tiny as atoms. A single human hair, placed in the balances, would cause the pan to go crashing down in the same manner as a heavy weight would affect an ordinary scale The tiny weights it uses are of gold and platinum and it is accurate to one part in 100,000,000 No other scale under the sun approaches this precision

A T Pienkowsky, one of the bureau's scientists, is shown manipulating the rods to lift the weights, adjust the riders and determine the result.

Traffic Hearing Is Postponed

The gale that whirled snow around the city hall Tuesday night made it difficult to reach the building from Broadway, and those who have interest in a proposed auto bus and traffic ordinance which a committee from the common council is preparing evidently took into consideration the motto "safety first" and stayed home, instead of going to the city hall and attending a meeting called by the committee for the purpose of discussing the provisions of a tentative ordinance. Chairman Beichert, Aldermen Fox and Smith, Corporation Counsel James Jenkins, City Clerk A. A. Styles were present, as were Secretary Coe of the Chamber of Commerce, Max L. Reben, Francis C. Merritt, and one or two others. After waiting a short time and listening too the howling wind, Chairman Beichert and Corporation Counsel Jenkins decided to have the meeting adjourned until Monday evening, March 16, at 7:30 o'clock, which was done by the chairman.

Teaspoonful of Powder from Italy Placed in Shoes Relieves Man of Rheumatic Pain Almost at Once.

When he went into the store to get this marvelous powder, he was a cripple. Because of the terrible, torturing effects of rheumatism he was crawling about on two canes.

Later the same man, Mr. F— B— (name on request), of New York City, wrote the following letter: "It gives me pleasure to inform you that one box of your powder completely cured me in three days of rheumatism, from which I have suffered for some time."

The discoverer of this powder is Alessandro Volta, the well-known Italian physicist for whom the electric volt was named. He discovered a scientific combination of certain ingredients which he compounded into a fine powder. This powder, when shaken into the shoes or stockings, is intended to penetrate immediately through the myriad pores in the soles of the feet.

He has called the powder Volta. It has been so successful in the treatment of thousands of cases of rheumatism, many of which were considered hopeless, that the American distributors have authorized local druggists to dispense the powder with an unqualified guarantee that the entire cost of the first box will be refunded if you are not wonderfully relieved.

If you suffer from Rheumatic pains, Sciatica, Lumbago, Gout or Neuralgia, you owe it to yourself to try this remarkable and revolutionary scientific treatment. It is absolutely harmless and will not cost one cent if you do not receive wonderful relief.

You can get a box of Volta with an absolute guarantee of quick relief, from such good druggists as: McBride Drug Store, W. S. Eltinge, Maben & Walker, Bongartz Pharmacy, Weber's Pharmacy, Connelly Drug Co.

Storm Costly to Rhode Island

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Providence, R. I., March 12.—Rhode Island is today in the grip of the most costly storm on record. Communication, wire and rail, is at a standstill. No train has left Newport and Providence for Fall River since 6 p. m. yesterday.

The state's chief industry, textile mills, suffered heavy loss through inability of operatives to reach their places of employment and because of fallen and disabled electric wires.

South African Women Wear Smart Millinery

An interesting word picture of millinery modes in South Africa is given in a bulletin of the Retail Millinery Association of America by Mme. Amy Adams. Among other things, she tells of the use of ostrich feathers by "smart" women there, some of these plumes running nearly a yard in length.

"Milliners in Cape Town and Kimberly make most attractive displays," she writes. "They also take the greatest possible pains to suit the features of their clientele, and build the hats accordingly. No one seems to wear a home-made hat, as there is no attempt to instruct the amateur to make her own chapeaux. The result is that the 'tout ensemble' of an afternoon gathering is surprisingly smart.

"Shapes are identical under the shadow of Table mountain with those worn in New York, but they seem more lightly wired and of a softer buckram. Just now, in the height of their summer, very light colors are in vogue. These are usually faced with dark silk, or even velvet, which serves to give a little shade in the glaring sunshine.

"The South Africans believe in supporting home industries, so that really magnificent ostrich plumes, at least 34 inches long, adorn the more 'dressy' hats. They circle the crown completely and drop down the right side. Each flue and tip of these plumes must be perfect and the long blades sewed or arranged by a master hand. No apprentice can manage them. With specially designed hats nothing can achieve more flattery than the white plumage which is so popular. Horsehair or very light-weight straw is the material of their foundation."

Scientists Use Colors to Combat Insects

Men of science over Cambridge way in England put their heads together and then take time out to announce to a pestered world that mosquitoes favor navy blue above 16 other colors. Reporting further on the effect of colors, the scientists say that mosquitoes are unanimous in their aversion to yellow, and that they shun light blue almost to a mosquito. One observer says that house flies are indifferent to colors; another is positive that flies avoid pale blue and settle freely on white. A sense of color and a sense of smell are possessed by many kinds of insects, notably bees and butterflies, according to Darwin, Lubbock and other naturalists of the last century.

Just as we were dazzled with the idea of baffling the stings and arrows of outrageous insects by the trickiness of our apparel, or mayhap even ridding the earth of the busy boll weevil by some smelly lure, along comes the esteemed Engineering Foundation with a dissertation on combating mosquitoes by means of fishes, especially young ones. The most useful species for that service, so the announcement of the Foundation says, are the common sunfish, the mud minnow, and the killifish. Competition and struggle for existence in the mimic world. The minnow plays Goliath to the mosquito's David. Lay on Macsquito—and d—d be Goliath if he cries "Hold; Enough!" A sting may outdo a sling. Watch your fins, Mr. Killifish.

Guarding Our Animals

The vigilance of the United States Department of Agriculture was impressed upon Thomas A. Fife, of Mishawaka, Ind., when two deer shipped to him from Canada were recently held up in Detroit by a United States government veterinary inspector for the lack of a certificate from a Canadian official veterinarian. Government regulations covering such shipment require that the animals be accompanied by a certificate stating that the area from which they come is free from contagious diseases and has been so for a period of 30 days immediately preceding the importation. The certificate must be signed by a veterinarian of the Canadian government.

Sinclair Defies U. S. Attorneys

Instructs His Own Lawyers To Fight Teapot Dome Lease Cancellation "From Hell to Breakfast."

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cheyenne, Wyo., March 12.—"We'll fight it from hell to breakfast."

This was the crisp sentiment expressed today by Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil magnate, when questioned regarding his attitude toward the government annulment suit that would be filed here tomorrow against the Mammoth Oil Company, lessee of the Teapot Dome naval reserves near Casper, Wyo.

Sinclair arrived here with an imposing array of counsel, including Madtin W. Littleton, of New York, and Colonel Zevely. Sinclair's personal legal representative.

The oil operator's legal talent will contest with all the power at its command the injunction and annulment suits planned to be filed in federal court here tomorrow by Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, special counsel appointed by President Coolidge to recover the naval oil leases, which it is alleged were secured through fraud and corruption, when they were leased to Sinclair by former Secretary of Interior Fall.

"Our lease is valid in every particular and we will defend it against any and all attacks," Sinclair told International News Service. "I am glad this matter is to have a hearing in open court where both sides can be heard and where an American citizen has an equal chance. It is one thing to voice charges on the floor of the United States senate but quite another thing to sustain them in a court of law."

Sinclair declared that he had been a victim of unjust attacks for two years, and welcomed the opportunity now presented to offer a defense. He said he had no fear whatever of the outcome of the court proceedings.

Sinclair reverted to his favorite hobby—the race track—when asked what the nature of his defense against the pending court action, declaring:

"When a man is interested in race horses, his trainers decide the course of action; when a man is in court his attorneys determine what is to be done."

Sinclair said he had no knowledge of any removal of extensive equipment from the Teapot Dome structure by the Mammoth Oil Company, the Sinclair Teapot leasing company. He indicated his company intended to continue development work and oil production under the lease granted in 1922.

This attitude was in direct contradiction to the persistent reports from Casper that activity in the Teapot field practically ceased and that thousands of dollars worth of property had been removed from the field.

Federal Judge T Blake Kennedy, who will preside at the hearing here tomorrow, who has been out of the city for several days, returned early today. Efforts are under way to arrange a conference between him and attorneys representing Sinclair for this afternoon. It is understood the Sinclair lawyers desire to have an understanding concerning the rules which will govern Thursday's procedure.

John W. Lacey, local counsel for Sinclair, met the oil magnate's party here upon its arrival and a series of conferences were held last night. In these conferences were Martin W. Littleton, Paul D. Cravath and G. T. Stanford of New York; E. H. Chandler of Oklahoma, Ralph W. Garrett of Tulsa, Oklohoma; J. W. Zevely and John W. Lacey of Cheyenne.

A. E. Watts of New York, vice president of the Mammoth Oil Co. and W L. Connelly of Casper, general superintendent of the company, also attended the meetings.

No statement was forthcoming from the Sinclair lawyers.

Atlee Pomerene and Owen J Roberts, attorneys for the government, will reach Cheyenne this afternoon and are expected to at once file their pleadings with the clerk of the court.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATERS.

At the Opera House tonight are five varied vaudeville acts and the film "The Critical Age," from Ralph O'Connor's novel of Canadian life.

"The Green Goddess," starring George Arliss and Alice Joyce, is holding forth to capacity crowds at Keeney's. It concerns mostly the wife of a British major on the Indian frontier and her romance and adventures. At the Auditorium today, "Hollywood"—a James Cruze production with 20 real stars and 30 screen celebrities in the cast.

The final showings of the Paramount picture, "Stephen Steps Out," starring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., which opened at the Orpheum Monday, will take place there this evening. Theodore Roberts is featured in support of the star, and others include Noah Beery, Harry Myers and Frank Currier. The story is an appealing comedy of American youth and has scored a decided hit. Also five vaudeville acts. "Why Worry," with Harold Lloyd, one of the biggest and most expensive pictures of the year, is the offering Thursday, Friday and Saturday. This picture will not be shown in any other theater in Kingston during the year. On the bill there are also five new vaudeville acts.

HER WEDDING JOURNEY

What She Most Wanted in Life, She Worked for Years to Get—But When the Chance Came . . .

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

THERE was never a time that honeymoon trips had not possessed a wonderful fascination for her. As a child, she had eagerly devoured every available bit of information concerning the wedding journeys of the entire village, and in time it became a settled thing for each returning bride to subject herself to the admiring questions and worshipful homage of little Matilda Jones.

When it was that the idea of her own wedding trip first came to her, she could not tell, but it grew with her growth and strengthened with her strength, until it became the best part of her life. The supposedly necessary adjuncts of a man and a marriage never occurred to her—

To be sure, as she grew older, a village youth would now and then shamble diffidently up the garden walk on Sunday afternoon, or shyly offer his escort home from evening service at the little church. But all these things only frightened her, and by and by the young men ceased from troubling.

Then one day her mother died, and she was left all alone in the little white cottage at the end of the lane. As time passed, the thin little face wore a look of placid contentment, and the faded blue eyes looked out serenely—Matilda was about to take her wedding journey.

Away in the top of the tiny house, far back in a bureau drawer lay a little pile of money. She could tell the history of almost every penny there.

This was the dollar her pickled pears had brought, and that was the quarter saved on the trimming for her black alpaca dress. All this little pile of nickels and dimes she had earned selling blackberries.

She made daily pilgrimages to the shrine at the top of the house, and lovingly fingered her accumulated treasures. She thought—she was almost sure—she had enough now. There were nearly twenty whole dollars! She caught her breath at the audacity of spending such a fortune.

When people took wedding trips they wore new things. She looked doubtfully at her black alpaca; brushed it—sponged it—pressed it—and regarded it with a dubious sigh. It would have to do—she certainly could not afford a new dress. But in some trepidation she did invest in white cotton cloth and embroidered edging, and her cheeks grew pink with the excitement of making the unwonted finery.

Her evenings were especially delightful. She would go into the parlor and bring out the big atlas, and reverently turn the pages until she came to the map of her own state. There her slim forefinger would find the black dot which stood for the little village, and her eyes would gloat over the unknown world before her.

Just above that dot—where all those black lines met—was the junction, and sometimes she held her breath as she carried her finger away out along one of those lines, and stopped with a little gasp of delight at the extreme end of the map. Then she would draw a long sigh and shake her head, and, giving a quick little hitch to her chair, would settle herself to the delightful task of marking out her wedding journey.

She would go to the junction by stage. Then she would follow one of those black lines until she came to that large round ring with a dot in the middle.

Such a bit of a way it looked to be on the map, but she knew it was forty miles from home, and a big city!

Her breath came fast and she trembled a little when she thought of a hotel. Yes—she should go to one! She had never been to a hotel—a real hotel—she thought, regarding the village inn with fine scorn. She was not quite sure she would know how to behave—but she should certainly go. Who ever heard of a wedding trip without a hotel!

She decided to stay three days, perhaps four, and she looked fondly at the little round ring on the map, which contained so many delightful possibilities.

Then she would close the book and go to bed only to dream of wonderful electric-car rides to the moon.

At last the great day came. It dawned clear and cloudless, and a very happy Matilda climbed the stairs for her treasure. Joyously she grasped the precious pile with eager hands, then looked ruefully at the empty spot in the drawer. She hesitated a moment, quickly found the dingy nickel, and smiled content as she placed it back in its old corner and closed the drawer.

With trembling hands she arrayed herself in her wedding garments and seated herself on the doorstep to wait for the stage.

"Matilda Jones looked almost handsome this morning, with her cheeks so pink," said a pretty girl on the back seat to her companion, as the coach stopped for its passenger.

"Why, Nellie," said Matilda to this same pretty girl, as she clambered in, "am I going to have you to ride with? That will be nice, I'm sure!"

"Yes, I am going up to the junction to do some shopping—you know I'm pretty busy these days," said she, with an adorable blush, which suddenly reminded Matilda that it was nearing Nellie's wedding day. This warmed her heart to her at once, for was she not on her own wedding trip? She beamed anew on Nellie as she settled herself comfortably for the two-mile drive.

How the sun shone and the birds sang, and how good the air was to breathe.

"Are you going away for long, Miss Matilda?" inquired Nellie politely.

"No—only a little trip," she replied, trying to look unconcerned, as if trips were an everyday occurrence with her; but the red deepened in her cheeks, and her voice trembled a little as she asked abruptly:

"Where are you going to take your wedding trip dear?"

The girl colored painfully.

"We can't take any at all, Miss Matilda—isn't it dreadful?" and the young face looked pinched and drawn with woe. "You see, Jim's money, that he'd been saving up to go with, got all burned up in the fire, and—and—we've had to give it up'" she finished with a wail that clearly told her disappointment.

Miss Matilda sat very still. She thought her heart had stopped beating—then it gave a big thump, and there was a strange, tight feeling in her throat. She did not say anything, and by and by Nellie looked out at the scenery with a grieved expression on her pretty face. When they reached the junction, the young girl turned her head, and said constrainedly, as she jumped lightly from the coach: "I hope you'll have a nice time, Miss Matilda."

"Thank you," she murmured without smiling, and clambered slowly down. Then she walked along the platform, and sat down on an old settee on the shady side of the building.

By and by a train rumbled in—shook itself of passengers—gathered a new lot—and rumbled out again. One—two—three trains did the same thing, and the forlorn little woman still sat on the old settee.

"Didn't you want to take one o' them trains?" good-naturedly asked the blue-coated man, who had been curiously watching her for some time.

She looked at him with dull eyes, and shook her head.

When the stage coach made its evening trip to the village Nellie was surprised to find Miss Matilda on the back seat.

"Why, I didn't expect to see you so soon! Didn't you go?" asked the young girl pleasantly.

"No, I had—I had a headache—I mean a throatache," stammered Matilda in confusion.

The next night Nellie burst into her mother's room with an excited face, holding an open letter and a pasteboard box in her hand.

"Mother—what do you think! I told Miss Matilda yesterday how we couldn't take any wedding trip, and she never said a word, and then I felt real cross, 'cause I thought she didn't care a bit; but just see what that dear old maid has done!"

My Dear Nellie

I think wedding trips are the nicest things in the world, and I don't want you to give up yours. I had a little extra money that I did not know what to do with, so I send it to you for your wedding trip. I hope you will have a nice time.

Your friend,

MATILDA JONES.

And Nellie's tears dropped fast on the dimes and nickels that rolled out of the pasteboard box.

Away at the top of a tiny house, in a bureau drawer, a lone nickel keeps guard over a dainty pile of wedding garments.

Masonic Tribute To Philip Elting

Kingston Lodge of Masons Presents Him With Masonic Jewel In Honor of His Appointment as Grand Representative.

Kingston Lodge, No. 10, Free and Accepted Masons, held a celebration Tuesday night at Masonic Hall, Wall street, in honor of Right Worshipful Philip Elting, whose appointment as grand representative of the Grand Lodge of Saskatchewan near the Grand Lodge of New York recently was announced, and among the distinguished visitors of the evening, the lodge entertained Most Worshipful Arthur S. Tompkins of Nyack, grand master of the Grand Lodge of Masons of New Cork.

The celebration and reception to Right Worshipful Elting was the special feature of the regular communication of the lodge, which was attended by Masonic visitors from many sections of New York state, in the course of which Mr. Elting was presented by the lodge with a grand representative's jewel bearing the emblem of the Grand Lodge of Saskatchewan.

The celebration and reception came at the close of a brief business session and the visiting grand officers were introduced by Right Worshipful Elva H. Bogart, past assistant grand lecturer, acting as marshal.

Past masters of the Kingston Lodge who were presented were Charles C. Ten Broeck, Christopher K. Loughran, Edgar N. Palen, Ward B. Everett, Rev. Arthur S. Cole, Dr. Henry Van Hoevenberg, Charles B. Everett and Arthur A. Davis.

Visiting past masters of other lodges presented were W. H. Freese of Cairo; Louis Beeres of Rondout Lodge, No. 343, of Kingston; Harlie McK. Curtis of Coxackie and George H. Marsh of Coxsackie.

Past district deputies of the Ulster-Greene district, both of members of Kingston Lodge, who were presented were John E. Kraft and Joseph Drake. Past district deputies, members of other lodges, were Sam Stern of Rondout Lodge; W. L. Hawkins of Thompkins Lodge, Staten Island; Philip Goodwin of Ark Lodge, Coxsackie; who were followed by Robert E. Leighton, the present district deputy of the Greene-Ulster district.

Right Worshipful A. T. Clearwater, past grand representative of the Grand Lodge of California near the Grand Lodge of New York; Right Worshipful Rev. Augustus A. Walker, grand chaplain of the Grand Lodge of New York; Most Worshipful Arthur S. Tompkins, grand master of the New York Grand Lodge; and Right Worshipful Philip Elting, past master of Kingston Lodge and present grand representative of the Grand Lodge of Saskatchewan, were in turn presented to the lodge.

The formal presentation of the grand officers was followed by a selection by Zucca's orchestra, after which Judge Clearwater in an address characterized by exceeding good humor eulogized Mr. Elting until the latter was hardly able to recognize the portrait as his own. The address was thoroughly appreciated.

Another musical selection, Lester's "The Arrow and the Song," by the Masonic quartet, in which Herman LaTour, the well known tenor, appeared in public for the first time since his accident some time ago, was followed by the presentation of the grand representative's jewel to Mr. Elting by the lodge, the presentation speech being made on behalf of the lodge by Judge Tompkins, grand master, who spoke eulogistically of Mr. Elting. Mr. Elting responded feelingly to the address. The grand representative's jewel bears the emblem of the Grand Lodge of Saskatchewan and is a magnificent specimen of the jeweler's art. It may be worn as a watch fob.

After the formal proceedings and closing of the lodge, an elaborate luncheon was served, the menu being as follows:

Roast Virginia Ham
Mashed Potatoes, Brown Gravy
Green Peas Pickles
Tea Biscuits
Maraschino Ice Cream Layer Cake
Coffee
Cigars

In the speechmaking which followed, Right Worshipful Robert E. Leighton, district deputy of the Ulster-Greene district, presided, and responses were made by Past District Deputy W. L. Hawkins of the Richmond district; the Rev. A. A. Walker, grand chaplain; Past District Deputy Philip Goodwin of the Ulster-Greene district; Past District Deputy Joseph Drake of the Ulster-Greene district; John W. Eckert, and Past Master Arthur A. Davis of Kingston Lodge.

In his address before the lodge, Judge Tompkins had complimented the lodge highly upon its decision to build a modern Masonic home, and later Mr. Davis on behalf of the Fellowcraft presented the lodge with a check for $100 to be devoted to the building fund. A check for a similar amount for a similar purpose was also presented to the lodge by Mr. Elting.

Homes of Nation Must Be First, Leaders Urge as Communities Mobolize for Better Homes Drive

MISS GRACE ABBOTT MRS. THOMAS G. WINTER

That the homes of a nation are and must continue to be a thing of greatest importance to the women of that nation is maintained by some of the best-known women of the United States, who are devoting their time and energies to home improvement, under the auspices of Better Homes in America.

Among the national leaders on the board of directors of this organization is Miss Grace Abbott, Chief of the United States Children's Bureau. Miss Abbott points out the urgency of better homes in America from the standpoint of the children of the country. Another earnest advocate of home betterment is Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and a member of the advisory council of Better Homes in America.

The Better Homes in America movement grew out of a speech of the late President Harding at Akron, Ohio in 1921, who declared that "the soundness of our social system and stability of our country are greatly enhanced by the development of love for a home, and the creation of a home that can be loved." The organization so proved its educational value for the home-makers and prospective home-makers of the country that it was recently incorporated as a national educational institution, with Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, as president, and James Ford, national housing specialist, as executive director.

Communities throughout the United States are already being mobilized for Better Homes demonstrations, which will take place during Better Homes Week, from May 11 to May 18. In former years these demonstrations have been held in communities all the way from the Gulf Stream to beyond the Arctic circle, there were approximately 1000 such demonstrations in 1923 alone. The number will probably be materially increased this year, as the educational value of the demonstrations along home-making lines has now been thoroughly established. President Coolidge, who heads the advisory council of Better Homes in America, recently issued an endorsement of the movement, urging co-operation in Better Homes demonstrations upon communities throughout the nation.

Headquarters are at 1653 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington.

ECONOMY vs. WASTE

By JOHN T. ADAMS,

Chairman of the Republican National Committee

No period in American history records as great improvement in conditions as the period since March, 1921. It can be realized only by comparing the hard times and general depression which existed then with the activity and prosperity which exist today.

When the Republican party came into power three years ago the situation could not have been much worse.

Five million wage-earners were walking the streets. Agriculture generally was on the verge of bankruptcy. Interest rates were high. Government securities were selling at 85. Business of all kinds was bad, and very apprehensive of the future.

Federal expenses and taxes were high. The nation was still legally in a state of war with the central powers of Europe. All nations were suspicious of each other and engaged in competition to increase their military and naval equipment.

Under Republican administration and Republican legislation a marvelous transformation has taken place.

The industrial activity of the last year has been the greatest in American history. More wage earners have been employed at higher wages than ever before. Retail business broke all records last year.

Although it has not yet received its full measure of prosperity, agriculture has gone forward a long distance from its depression of 1921, and conditions justify the belief that this improvement will continue. Business is optimistic and preparing for a record breaking year.

America is at peace with the world. Solely through the instrumentality of the late President Harding a conference was called and carried to successful conclusion which resulted in universal naval disarmament and the promotion of a spirit of friendship among the leading powers of the world.

Public expenses have been reduced over $2,000,000,000 a year, and this has been in turn lifted from the backs of the American people in the form of tax reductions. Government securities are selling at par or better. Interest rates are normal, encouraging legitimate industrial and business expansion.

Cooperation among the governmental agencies has been established, resulting in a tremendous saving of money and an equally great improvement in the quality of public service.

This has been brought about by Republican policies in which the legislative and executive branches of the government have cooperated.

RICKARD CLEARED OF CHARGES, SAY FRIENDS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 12.—Although a definite statement in the matter will not be forthcoming until the return of Colonel John J. Phelan, of the license committee, on March 22, boxing authorities here were positive that Tex Rickard had been cleared of ticket speculation charges by the investigation of the State Athletic Commission. George E Brower, chairman of the commission, has to date contented himself with the announcement that the body has completed the investigation.

The charges against Rickard were brought by Tom O'Rourke, rival boxing man.

Court Short Rent Deposits

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, March 12.—A shortage of $19,216 in the rent accounts of the Seventh district municipal court of New York city today was reported to State Comptroller James W. Fleming.

Copies of the report just completed by the court and trust fund examiners of the comptroller's office also were filed with District Attorney Hilaton of New York city, Comptroller Craig and Presiding Justice Friedlander of that district.

The money was paid into the court pending litigations in the emergency rent laws.

During the operation of the emergency rent laws millions of dollars have been paid into the New York city municipal courts, pending the outcome of litigation to modify the rents demanded by landlords, according to Comptroller Fleming.

The period covered by the comptroller's examination covered from June 1, 1920, to November 2, 1922. In that time approximately $2,000,000 was paid into the court.

"Against the account there are 462 open items amounting to approximately $19,000," said a statement issued by the comptroller. "Sixty-two claimants are pressing the comptroller for payment, the aggregate amount of their claims being $4,369. The amount available to meet these claims is but $624."

"Under the state finance law a duty is imposed upon the comptroller to supervise funds and moneys paid into any court of record.

"The examination of the rent account of the Seventh Municipal Court shows there are a large number of litigants who have not received the amount paid into court during the period examined, and placed to the credit of the action in which they are interested.

"Checks totalling $14,859 and payable to the Columbia Trust Company as trustees were drawn on the Corn Exchange Bank where the regular deposits were made. Upon investigation this sum is found to represent rents deposited with the court as shown by amounts entered upon summons. These rent deposits however, were not recorded on the cash book."

Comptroller Fleming announced that he is reorganizing his force of auditors to make a sufficient number available for an immediate examination of all courts in which rent accounts have been deposited.

NEWBURGH'S TAX RATE

$24.80 PER $1,000 VALUATION.

Newburgh's budget for all city purposes except water rents is $707,114.67 for 1924. The city tax will be $24.80 per $1,000 assessed valuation, and, with state and county tax added, the total rate will be $34.80 per $1,000. Certain taxpayers announce they will test the legality of the budget in the courts. The amount was increased from $588,824.96 by the new council and City Manager McCaw, that amount having been adopted as the budget by the 1923 council.

Reckless Driver Fined $25.

It cost J. R. Hunt of Veteran $25 on Monday afternoon because of reckless driving. Hunt, driving a car in which five others were seated, ran into the car of Harry Gilmore, which was parked off the road near the entrance to The Clove road at Centerville, and did quite a little damage to the Gilmore car. Police Captain Richter of Saugerties brought Hunt before Police Justice Gardner of Saugerties, who sustained the charge made and imposed the fine, which Hunt paid.

TOLD IN THE CITY

When love dies Cupid doesn't bother with an autopsy.

An egotist is any man who thinks he is better than you are.

A woman clothed with authority thinks more of the trimming.

If every rose has its thorn, how about those flowery beds of ease?

Don't rust. Even a good reputation will tarnish if it isn't kept in constant use.

It takes an optimist to realize that the hour of adversity contains only 60 minutes.

The magazines certainly print lots of mushy literature, including the cereal stories.

It's all right to take things as they come, but it is quite another matter to make them stay.

You never can tell. The man with a long head is seldom the one who rushes into things headlong.

Self-discipline demonstrates that many a man feels like kicking himself who wouldn't let anyone else do it.

"There is no such word as fail," cried the optimist. "But there are plenty of synonyms," growled the pessimist.

WITH THE GIRLS

A woman's idea of a model husband is one who takes housecleaning philosophically.

Most men appreciate the nonsense of a pretty woman far more than they do the sense of a homely one.

Talk is scarce during courtship, but the woman in the case more than makes up for it after marriage.

A girl who sits and waits for a man to propose must feel a good deal like a cat that is watching a rathole.

Half-Way House of the Atlantic

Fruit Vendor of the Azores.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

The Azores, historic half-way house of the Atlantic, come into their own as a traffic station in the winter when the Europe-bound stream of tourists runs to the Mediterranean countries rather than to northern Europe. Just as Columbus, plying between a port near the Strait of Gibraltar and America, passed among the Azores, so modern steamer lanes touch the islands; and the tourists refresh themselves by hasty visits to its picturesque towns and countryside as the really ocean-weary world explorers cheered and revived their spirits by setting foot once more on terra firma.

These quaint bits of land almost in mid-Atlantic are well worth more than the hasty, passing visit that most tourists give them. The central cluster of the group, formed by the islands of Fayal, Pico, Sao Jorge, Graciosa and Terceira, lies more than 840 miles directly west of Lisbon. About 150 miles northwest of this centrally located group are Flores and Corvo, and approximately the same distance to the southeast Santa Maria, and the largest and most important of all, St. Michaels (Sao Miguel).

The Azores are not, as is generally supposed, a colonial possession, but form an integral part of Portugal. For political and administrative purposes they are divided into three districts, each sending its representatives to the congress at Lisbon.

Owing to their location, the Azores have played a very important part in the history of sea navigation, and even in aerial navigation, for they were the half-way house in the epochal transatlantic flight by American naval officers in the seaplane NC-4.

The keen interest that the Azoreans manifested in the first transatlantic flight had a deeper cause than mere curiosity. They remember that the first sailing vessel that crossed the Atlantic, over four hundred years ago, landed at one of their islands. They were the first to receive from Columbus the news of the discovery of a new world, and they hailed with delight the opportunity to welcome to their shores the first man to win the title of "Columbus of the Air."

Discovered by Cabral.

The discovery of Madeira, the Canaries and the Azores islands was a direct result of the persistent efforts of Prince Henry the navigator, of Portugal, to double Cape Bojador and to discover a new route to India. It was during the glorious period of Portuguese explorations that Goncalo Velho Cabral discovered Santa Maria, the most southerly of the Azores, in 1432. In the course of succeeding years, covering a period of more than a decade, the other islands were discovered.

From that time on down to modern days the Azores, or Western islands, became the scene of many an historic event.

Violent earthquakes have disturbed the Azores during the centuries since their discovery down to the Eighteenth. The annals of the islands vie with those of Italy in graphic accounts of the ever-interesting and terrible volcanic phenomena. Cities were buried, mountains disappeared and sent their ashes to unbelievable distances; islands hundreds of feet high suddenly appeared and as suddenly disappeared, and flames of fire illuminated whole islands and their intervening waters.

There is perhaps no country in the world that has such a heavy tide of emigration, in proportion to the number of its inhabitants, as the Western islands. Some of the emigrants go to Brazil, but by far the majority go to the United States. During the year before the World war, 6,000 Azoreans emigrated to the United States, and it is estimated that there are 85,000 Azoreans in California and over 60,000 in New Bedford, Mass., Providence, R. I., and other parts of New England, making a total of almost 160,000. The population of all the Azores is scarcely 300,000. Many of the emigrants return home, and almost all of the inhabitants of some of the islands have been in the United States.

The island of St. Michaels does not overwhelm you with the grandeur of a Rocky mountain scene. It captures you subtly. Little by little impressions pile up in your memory until your fancy lingers in the beautiful gardens, whose walls are covered with wisteria and climbing roses, in the magnificent parks, and among the extensive hedges of hydrangea that bloom along the country roads.

By way of contrast, St. Michaels will fret and frown amid fearful, stormy seas. But you are compensated when, on a sunny day, you stand on the summit of one of the many peaks and behold the tranquil scene below you. Then you will see the island studded with towns and villages, the verdant hills laid out in checkered fields and cultivated to the very tops, picturesque dome-like windmills turning their long wings, and the harbor and surrounding ocean dotted with sails that glisten in the bright sunshine.

Ponta Delgada, the largest city in the Azores, has 17,600 inhabitants. Fortunately, it has preserved some of its old features, the inheritance of the past centuries—just enough to breathe an atmosphere of quaintness and to make the place so delightfully attractive that the jumble of high, massive chimneys, the tall walls, and the small balconies that overhang the streets become a part of one's life.

Modern buildings there are, such as the imposing hospital, the quarantine station, the governor's palace, and many private residences. But it is not these one cares to talk about in a place that can boast interesting relics of the past.

Fine Botanical Gardens.

Ponta Delgada still has a number of houses that have been handed down through generations in accordance with the law of the morgados. The morgado was the oldest son, who inherited the estate of his father and upon whom devolved the duty of providing for the other members of the family. The architecture of these houses is the same as that used in olden times by the morgados of northern Portugal. Here they are built of massive lava rock. Many of the gardens have high stone towers that command a view of the sea and surrounding country.

Ponta Delgada has wonderful botanical gardens. They have been pronounced by some as ranking next to those in Portugal, and by others as inferior only to the famous gardens of Brazil. That of Jose do Canto was begun in 1848. Senor Canto was connected with all the different nurseries in the world, and it was his ambition to gather specimens of all the trees and plants that could be obtained. The result is a marvelous collection.

The gardens contain tree ferns originally from Australia, many species of palms (such as the date, sago, and fan), Australian myrtle, great varieties of aloes, magnificent roses and camellias, India-rubber trees, banyan trees, acacias, magnolias, dracenas, brilliant red-flame trees, screw-pines, and fine specimens of the cedar of Lebanon.

Formerly, oranges were the principal article of export, and in 1872, 300,000 boxes were shipped abroad, representing a value of about $600,000. From that time on the orange industry declined, as a result of tree blight.

St. Michaels is a little world in itself, and the Azoreans have a little of everything. They raise their own wine and tea and have their own mineral water and thermal baths; they have their own tobacco and manufacture their own cigars; they cultivate large quantities of sugar-beet and manufacture their own sugar. The rich volcanic earth and humid, but healthful, climate lend themselves to the cultivation of great varieties of agricultural products, including vegetables and fruits of the temperate and tropical zones. Twenty-one thousand head of cattle graze in the hills and help to form one of the principal industries of the islands, the manufacture of cheese. The sea furnishes a livelihood for a large number of its inhabitants, and thousands of lobsters are exported to the continent.

To buoy the rapidly falling French franc, which has reached the lowest level in history, a group of American bankers, headed by J. P. Morgan, will make a $50,000,000 loan to France. Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, commanding the Brooklyn Navy Yard, after appealing to the police and Federal authorities to aid him in preventing his men from getting liquor, declared prohibition enforcement was a flat failure and impossible under present laws. Edward Young Clarke, of Atlanta, Ga., former Ku Klux Klan Imperial Wizard, now engaged in "cleaning up" the Klan, pleaded guilty in Houston, Tex., to violation of the Mann White Slave Act and was fined $5,000. The bid of Henry Ford for the purchase of the Government's $100,000,000 nitrate and power project at Muscle Shoals, Ala., has been accepted by the House and submitted to the Senate. In a speech in New York City Japanese Ambassador Mansano Hanihara declared America's generous aid at the time of the earthquake disaster and her prompt oversubscription of the recent Japanese loan have endeared America to Japan forever. To put down the mutiny among officers of the Free State Army, General Owen O'Duffy has been appointed commander-in-chief.

ONE CENT A WORD ADVS. BRING RESULTS

Direct Primary Fight Is on

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, March 12.—A fight over direct primaries opened in the assembly this afternoon with a debate which was expected to last for two or three hours.

Both Democratic and Republican bills were under discussion. The Republican bill, which was introduced by Assemblyman Steinberg of New York, is the same as the old Hinman-Greene bill originated by former Governor Hughes. It provides the naming of party candidates by designating committees. They will run in the primaries against independent candidates. This bill was on the calendar for final passage.

The Democratic bill was brought before the house by a motion by Assemblyman Bloch, the Democratic leader, to discharge the judiciary committee from further consideration of it.

Under the Democratic bill the direct primary law which was on the statute books before the administration of Governor Miller would be restored. The Republican legislature at that time repealed it and substituted the old convention system for the nomination of state and judicial candidates.

Speaker Machold has endorsed the Steinberg bill and the indications are that the assembly will pass it. The Democratic bill has already passed the senate. This is probably as far as either bill will get. The fight for restoration of direct primaries has been more determined this year because of the fact that a governor and other state officials are to be elected this fall.

Allen in His Palmy Days

Great Games In Which Kingstonian Showed Stuff Which Made Him Peer Of Old Time Baseball Stars.

Myron Allen, the hero of our boyhood, is no more. Already his pleasing presence and genial, happy spirit is missed at the post office building where he had been daily for the last fifteen years of his life. The companion and playmate of his grandchild is gone.

His sudden loss recalls vividly those scenes of our boyhood days in the 'eighties when Allen was achieving victories and feats of athletic prowess on the diamond.

We recall him hurling the sphere at opposing batsmen on the Donovan field. Who will forget the figure he made in pitching, fielding the ball to Gibson at first base, Van Etten at second or Hatfield at third? He was the central figure in every game, the stonewall of offense and defense. His strength was phenomenal in pitching as well as batting. When putting his full force behind the ball George Johnston was seen to be lifted by the impact. So it seemed to us boys. His powerful drives were famous and he was much feared at the bat. Who will forget the great games with outside teams, the Metropolitans, the Brooklyns, the Atlantics? Dick Johnston and Myron Allen became so well known that they attracted the notice of the Bostons and the New York Giants. Johnston joined the Boston team and Allen the Giants.

Who can fail to recollect the big game between the Kingston Leaders and the Giants, with Alen pitching against his old comrades and Roger Connor at first base? Mr. Gibson, who played so well at first base for our team as to rival the great Connor, described today that encounter of forty years ago.

"Allen pitched a marvelous game against the Leaders who were winning against all opponents. We had the Dugan brothers as our battery. The Giants brought Mickey Welch along to back Myron up, if necessary, to win the game. Dicky Johnston could hit Allen even though pitching his utmost, at least we thought so, but Allen only smiled. At any rate through Dick's batting that day we were in the lead, 8 to 7, when in the eighth Connor, who had been struck out three times by Dugan, hit a terriffic liner to Dugan which struck that pitcher's right arm and incapacitated him. We put in a substitute and the Giants made six runs in the next inning, beating the Leaders 13 to 8. Allen played a great game on the other side."

So while Dick Johnston played with Boston and Detroit, Allen passed from the Giants to Kansas City's big team. Anson, Brouthers, Delehanty, Richardson, Keefe and Ward were their contemporaries.

We boys also remember Allen playing on the Broadway grounds again at home.

We saw him hit the longest blow ever struck in Kingston, a regular Babe Ruthian swat. The home plate was about in the rear of where Doctor Buckley's office is now and the ball landed over O'Neil street. That hit won the game, Ertelt coming home ahead of Allen. Those were bitter games when Bill McCabe brought up his Poughkeepsie team with Dan Brouthers. Allen played second and scooped 'em up something amazingly. His batting was wonderful.

Allen also helped Kingston as a coach and was interested in our great present winning Colonials each season.

Summing up Myron Allen's career Kingston has lost a man and a sportsman, faithful and true; a citizen who commanded the respect and affection of friends and neighbors, an active worker in the Government service with the very best record whose application for continued service over the age limit had just been granted by the government in view of the excellence of his standing; his family and the community have sustained a deep loss.

By custodian employes and post office force at Kingston post office.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 12.—Strength in Norfolk and Western and in Southern Railway featured an otherwise dull opening of the stock market today. Norfolk advanced one point to 120½ and Southern Railway ⅝ to 50⅝. Other carriers stocks were steady. United States Steel yielded ¼ to 102½ while Crucible rose ½ to 62½. Oils were somewhat irregular, Pacific Oil advancing ¼ to 52½ and Standard of California ⅝ to 62⅞. Pan-American lost ¼ to 49⅝, Texas Company ¼ to 42¼, and Phillips Pete ⅛ to 50⅝.

Steadiness characterized trading in the forenoon session. Renewal of buying of railroad shares, especially the medium and low priced ones, was the outstanding feature. Southern Railway rose 2 points to 52⅛ and Norfolk and Western above 121, up about 2 points, both issues showing new highs. Erie rose over one point to 25⅝. Northern Pacific, however, lost one point to 52. Oils were firm. Steels were steady. Sugars were higher. Other standard groups, like the coppers, the motors and the equipments, showed small fractional changes.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 12.—By a vote of 197 to 158 the house voted this afternoon to have the corruption charges against two of its members investigated by a special committee of five members independently of what action is taken by the department of justice.

The congressmen involved have never been named except in rumors, and both Representative Langley, Republican, Kentucky, and Representative Zihlman, Republican of Maryland, have taken cognizance of these rumors by issuing formal denial they were the members concerned.

The bandits brought rope to tie the clerks, and when this ran short, tore down electric lights and used the light cord to finish the job.

MELLON FINDS FAULT WITH LONGWORTH BILL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 12.—Denouncing many parts of the Longworth tax bill as "unwise and unscientific" and asserting that it makes "no material reduction in high surtaxes" on big incomes, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon went before the senate finance committee today and declared that if the bill became law it would create a deficit in the treasury.

The loss of revenue under the bill, Mellon said, would be $450,00,000 as against the estimated surplus for next year of $395,000,000.

Kriete of New York, and has relatives in Kingston, in Stamford, Delaware county, and in Miami, Fla., where her husband before he died suddenly a few years ago, owned hotels. She was a member of Order of Eastern Star. Funeral services this evening at 8:30 o'clock, at the funeral parlors, 14 East street, New York. Interment private. Mr. MacKillip was a nephew of Melvin J. Schermerhorn of this city.

Sarah Catherine Kiernan, widow of the late Major Edward O'Reilly, formerly of Rondout, where he was in business on West Strand for years, and mother of Henry, Thomas and Sarah O'Reilly, and Lucy A. Rafter, died in New York city, Sunday, March 9. The funeral service was held at the residence, 26 Morningside avenue, today, at 9:30 a. m., thence to the Church of St. Thomas the Apostles, West 118th street, where a solemn requiem Mass was celebrated for the repose of her soul. The interment will be made in the O'Reilly family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery, this city.

The many friends in this city of Mrs. Mae A. DeSilva, were shocked to learn of her untimely death on March 1st, at Dr. Sahler's Sanitarium, following a surgical operation, regarded as successful. Mrs. DeSilva was the wife of Joseph DeSilva, general superintendent of the State Game Commission, with residence at Fleischmanns, in which place Mrs. DeSilva was well and favorably known having served there many years as an instructor in the public schools until forced by ill health to resign her position. For the past eighteen months she had resided at Sherwood Lodge, this city, where she had endeared herself to a circle of friends, who will daily miss the sunshine of her presence, as she was possessed of a very gentle, lovable, kindly disposition. Funeral services were held at Fleischmanns with burial at Margaretville, beside the body of her mother to whom she had given a lifetime devotion.

The funeral of Mrs. Bridget Walton was held from th elate residence, 48 Meadow street, this morning at 9 o'clock and from St. Mary's Church at 9:30 o'clock, where a high Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of her soul by the Rev. John F. Duffy. The services were very largely attended and the floral tributes were many and beautiful. Mrs. Walton was born in Ireland. Coming to this country over seventy years ago she made her home in this city, where she resided ever since. The bearers were Leo Fitzgerald, Thomas Walton, Thomas Keating and Walton Fitzgerald, all grandsons of the deceased. Interment was in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery, the Rev. Thomas A. Keane conducting the committal services at the grave.

The funeral of Adam, the little son of Christopher Genther, was held Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. Joseph B. Ostermann conducted services at home and at the grave in St. Peter's Cemetery, where the body was interred.

The funeral of Granville Whittaker, who died on March 6, was held from his late residence, Albany avenue extension, on Monday morning and was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. The 130 employes of the H. W. Palen's Sons attended in a body. The floral tributes were many, among which was a blanket of roses presented by the men with whom he worked. He had been the superintendent of the H. W. Palen's Sons for twenty-five years and in that time had always shown himself to be a man of high principles, integrity, and to be associated with him in a business way meant much to the men with whom he came in contact for so long a time. In the death of Granville Whittaker, Kingston has lost one of its best citizens, the family a devoted husband and father, and his friends a most loyal friend. The Rev. Frank B. Seeley, D. D., pastor of the Fair Street Reformed Church, officiated at the service, and at the interment the Rev. A. A. Walker, brother-in-law of deceased, offered prayer, interment being in the Whittaker family plot. Sunday evening the Jr. O. U. A. M. funeral service was performed at the home, Mr. Whittaker having been a member of the order.

Death on Monday claimed the second member of the family of former Sheriff Frank S. Decker, of Greene county, within less than two months when his only daughter, M. Ola Decker, wife of Griffin Hallock Mackey, died at her home at Williamsport, Pa. The death of Mrs. Decker occurred January 22 at her home in Coxsackie after an injury two months before. At that time Mrs. Mackey was critically ill and it was feared that the news of her mother's death might be fatal. A host of friends in Catskill, where part of Mrs. Mackey's school days and girlhood were spent, mourn her passing. Born in New York city 52 years ago she had lived at Highland, Ulster county, at Cairo and, following her marriage to Mr. Mackey, at Paterson, N. J. Their home has been at Williamsport for about six years. Mrs. Mackey's chief activity has been in the Baptist Church of the various communities of the residence. She is well remembered for her devoted interest as a member of the congregation here. Besides her father, Frank S. Decker, who returned but a few weeks ago from a visit at her home in Williamsport, Mrs. Mackey is survived by two brothers, Attorney Percy W. Decker and Druggist Louis B. Decker, both of Catskill.

The funeral of Hugh Gara who died in this city on Sunday evening last following an extended illness, was held from the chapel of Leo V. Grogan, Wall and Pearl streets, at 8:30 o'clock this morning and at St. Joseph's Church at 9 o'clock where a high Mass of requiem was celebrated for the repose of his soul by the Very Rev. Dean Joseph G. Cushman, V. F. The funeral services were very largely attended, the deceased, a former hotel proprietor of Hunter, N. Y., being very popular, and having scores of friends by whom he was highly respected and who deeply mourn his loss. On Tuesday evening the members of St. Joseph's Holy Name Society gathered at the Grogan chapel, and in company with their pastor, the Very Rev. Dean Cushman, recited the rosary for the repose of the soul of the deceased. At 8:30 o'clock the same evening the members of Kingston Lodge, No. 550, B. P. O. Elks, gathered at the chapel and conducted their service out of respect for their deceased brother. As the body was borne from St. Joseph's Church, following the funeral Mass, the full church choir sang "Lead Kindly Light." The church services were also attended by a large delegation of Kingston Lodge of Elks. The casket bearers, all brother member Elks, were Charles J. Mullen, E. Frank Flanagan, Thomas J. Kennedy and Jacob A. Bernstein. The remains were temporarily placed in Wiltwyck receiving vault and will be taken to Hunter, N. Y., at a later date for interment in the family plot.

The Rev. Ralph Brokaw, D. R., pastor emeritus of the First Presbyterian Church of Utica, N. Y., who was well known in this city, died on Thursday, March 6, at Faxton Hospital, Utica, after an illness of two days with pneumonia, which followed a pulmonary embolism. He was one of the most beloved clergymen in central New York. Dr. Brokaw was born near New Brunswick, N. J., February 14, 1855, and was the son of Peter Stryker and Adaline Brokaw. While attending Rutgers College at New Brunswick he was recommended to the late James O. Merritt of this city as a candidate for the ministry and thereby received his course of training at New Brunswick Theological Seminary. He was graduated from the seminary in 1877, and his first pastorate was in the Reformed Church at Herkimer, N. Y., where he remained five years. He served as pastor of the Reformed Church at Belleville, N. J., from 1882 to 1888, and then accepted a call from Hope Congregational Church at Springfield, Mass., where he remained ten years. While there he organized the Dutch Reformed Church Publishing House. In 1898, he became pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Utica, and continued actively as pastor until 1919, when he resigned after twenty-one years' pastorate. The same year the church unanimously voted for him for pastor emeritus and continued his salary at $2,000 a year. Shortly after his retirement he was made acting pastor of Sayre Memorial Presbyterian Church, Utica, where he continued until a year ago. While in New Jersey Dr. Brokaw became interested in Christian Endeavor work and was the first president of the Christian Endeavor State Union. He served in the highest judicatories of the Presbyterian Church, one of his greatest achievements being the part he played in bringing about the revision of the Westminster confession of faith, which was accomplished at a conference at Geneva, Switzerland. He served in numerous official positions in church organizations in central New York. He attracted criticism several years ago when he opposed a movement to bring the Rev. Billy Sunday to Utica, but he maintained that the work which the evangelist was expected to do there was in reality the task of the Utica pastors and was equivalent to confessing they were not able to do it themselves. Besides, he did not think the methods of the evangelist were in keeping with the dignity due to religious services. More recently he attracted criticism of William H. Anderson, of the Anti-Saloon League, for a similar stand in regard to his work. He was intolerant of anything sensational in the pulpit; his sermons were able and scholarly and while he would preach on subjects pertaining to the moral and spiritual welfare of the community, his sermons always were dignified. His wife, who was Miss Sarah Mershon, died in 1921. He is survived by one son, Walter Merritt Brokaw, of the firm of Brokaw & Companay, investment brokers of Chicago.

Americanizing Golden Rule

We, Too, Form Our Own Class When We Settle in Foreign Lands, Says Speaker At Rotary Luncheon.

Tom Cotton, in charge of Americanization work in a New York city Y. M. C. A., was the speaker at the Rotary Club luncheon this week. He advocated the Golden Rule in Americanization work and illustrated his point by a hypothetical case of Americans going to settle in Russia. They would form an English speaking group in whatever city they settled in. There would be an American church, an American club and American dances. Russians would observe and wonder and fail to understand. They might start a movement to Russianize the newcomers and pass a law to compel them to speak Russian. Too much of our Americanization work has been along that line. We tried to go too fast and to either coerce or pauperize.

Mr. Cotton outlined his plan, citing as an example the way he worked among Greeks. A Greek club was formed, which arranged lectures, dances and music. Then Greek business men raised a fund and a Greek secretary was employed to promote classes in citizenship and the study of English. Many forms of usefulness was developed, such as finding employment, giving vocational guidance, adjusting family troubles, etc. This work was so successful that it has been extended to Armenians and Russians. The foreigner comes here with self-respect and that self-respect must not be taken away or impaired by Americanization work. He must pay his own way, initiative must not be stifled and he must not be pauperized or coerced, but shown the way and given practical instruction and service.

An invitation from Kingston-on-Thames Rotary Club to Kingston, N. Y. Rotarians to visit them was received, a number of visitors were introduced and a very enthusiastic welcome home given to John Gregory, who has returned from a trip to Florida and Havana. Mr. Gregory feelingly sang "Lulu" in Spanish.

The new version of "We're Coming, We're Coming," inspired by the canned dinner of a week ago, was rehearsed in order that full justice may be done to it at the first meeting at which William H. Niles is present, Mr. Niles being at present ill.

Ulster County Pomona Grange

The regular meeting of Ulster County Pomona Grange was held at New Paltz, Friday, March 7th, with an unusually large attendance. The morning session was given over to reports of the various subordinate granges, many of the reports being most encouraging. A joint report of the recent State Grange was given by the delegates, Sister Sahler, Sister Zinegraf, Brothers Smith, Tice and Millham. They reported a delegation of one thousand to which Erie county gave a reception the first evening. Numerous resolutions were presented and reported on by the various committees. Brother Tice gave the names of the newly elected state officers, the election having taken place on the second day. Side trips including a visit to Niagara Falls made the occasion most enjoyable and the delegates were enthusiastic in praise of the convention.

National Deputy Delancey, was then called upon to speak. After paying a brief tribute to the late State Master, Albert J. Manning, he urged every member to give the same devotion to their newly elected master, S. L. Strivings, as they had to his predecessor. He spoke of the Grange as a connecting link between the farm and the town, a flower in the community that should support the church and the schools in the strongest possible way. During noon recess, an excellent chicken dinner was served by the Huguenot Grange downstairs.

As there was a still larger attendance in the afternoon Brother Delancey was again called upon to speak.

A pleasant diversion occurred when the Huguenot Grange put on a Harvest Home Drill. The sisters wore large gingham aprons and each carried a small sheaf of grain. The brothers wore blue overalls, large brimmed straw hats and carried sickles. In an impressive and pleasing manner Brother Delancey then installed the recently elected officers. He was assisted by Sister Richards, lady assistant steward; Sister Dubois, regalia bearer; Sister Gardiner, emblem bearer and Mrs. Frank Lefever at the piano.

A profusion of roses and sweet peas donated by Brother Burgevin of Kingston, added not a little to the attractive appearance of the hall. The meeting adjourned to meet at Mt. Tremper in June.

Kingston Man Escaped Death

But Two Companions Were Fatally Injured When Automobile Met With Accident On Steep Hill Near Middletown.

Edward M. Lester, local manager of the Carhart Advertising Corporation, which erects advertising signs, received a fractured leg and internal injuries Tuesday afternoon when an automobile belonging to the sign company skidded on the wet macadam of the steep hill at Fair Oaks, Orange county, causing an accident which also resulted in the death of Lester Coffey of Watervliet, who is a member of the corporation, and J. R. Sager, district manager for the Standard Oil Company at Middletown. Sager was killed instantly. Coffey died in Thrall hospital, Middletown, two hours after the accident.

Coffey and Lester had been in Middletown on business connected with the sign advertising conducted by the Carhart Corporation, which paints and erects the various signs used in this part of New York state to advertise Socony for the Standard Oil Company of New York. The three men had driven into the country a short distance from Middletown and were returning to that city when the accident occurred. The hill at Fair Oaks, where the fatal accident occurred, is on the line of the Binghamton-Liberty state highway, and was slippery from the rain and snow which had been falling fitfully during the day.

The automobile apparently skidded on the steep hill and then crashed into a pole alongside the road, overturned and came to a stop in a ditch thirty feet away. There were no witnesses to the accident. When help reached the party, Lester was found to be the only member of the party who was conscious. Coffey was unconscious and Sager was dead. The Middletown police were notified of the accident and the municipal ambulance hastened to the scene and removed the two survivors to Thrall hospital.

Mr. Lester makes his home at Rhinecliff, where he has done much for the advancement of the village. He is a member of the Kingston Kiwanis Club and is chairman of the publicity committee of the Ulster County Boy Scouts. Through his courtesy and generosity a large sign was erected on Broadway to aid the Boy Scout movement during their recent campaign here. He has many friends in Kingston and Rhinecliff. The Carhart Advertising Corporation's Kingston offices and plant are at No. 117 Broadway.

Coffey, who was a member of the Carhart Corporation, was a son of Fire Chief Lester F. Coffey of Watervliet. He was born and educated in Watervliet, where he was a prominent member of the Ghost Club and of Evening Star Lodge of Masons. His parents left for Middletown an hour after the accident and did not learn of their son's death until they arrived at Middletown. Besides his parents, Coffey is survived by his wife and one sister.

Sager is survived by his wife and one daughter. His death was somewhat similar to that of the former manager of the Standard Oil Company at Middletown, Charles H. Hodem, who was killed in an automobile accident while driving to New York city with friends to witness a boxing bout.

At Thrall hospital today it was stated that the extent of Lester's injuries could not be determined without an X-ray examination. It is said he was driving the car on its fatal trip.

McLean Admits Fall Loan Fake

information.

"Second: Those that show my desire to avoid appearing as a witness.

"Third: Those that relate to my personal and business affairs.

"Certainly none of them indicate that I had any connection with the oil leases which you are investigating and none of them could so indicate.

"I am now ready to answer any relevant questions upon the assurance and confidence, of course, that I will not be called upon to answer any questions which the law protects as privileged between my counsel and myself.

When McLean finished reading, Senator Walsh quickly pointed out that McLean in his statement did not mention the testimony he gave at Palm Beach about alleged $100,000 "loan" to Fall.

"Do you care to make any further statement about that?"

"No sir."

"Have you found the stubs of those supposed checks."

"No sir."

"There never were any checks, were there?"

"Oh, yes sir," McLean replied.

"In the fall of 1921," Senator Walsh said, "did you not have certain negotiations with Fall concerning a ranch that you thought of operating in partnership with him?"

"Yes sir."

"And after Fall sent elaborate outlines of the proposition you said you did not care to go in."

"That's correct."

Walsh then asked about the Atlantic City meeting between Fall and McLean. He said he was invited by Mrs. Fall, who called on the long distance phone and said Fall wanted to see him on important business. McLean said he hesitated about going and was finally persuaded by Mrs. Fall's insistence that "Albert is too ill to come to Washington."

"I got in my private car and went to the hotel where Mrs. Fall met me," said McLean. "She said the secretary had a dreadful night and was asleep. I must have waited 20 minutes until Fall came out. He had on a red wrapper.

"Fall was in bad condition physically. He said to me, 'Ned, you remember our check transaction two or three years ago. Do you mind saying that you loaned me the $100,000 in cash?'"

"He assured me it had nothing to do with Harry Sinclair or Teapot Dome. He said, 'Will you do this for me? I'm in an embarrassing position. Some of my enemies are trying to make it bad for me.'"

"As a result, I said, 'Yes, I will.'"

"Your telegram was sent to the committee pursuant to that arrangement with Fall?" asked Walsh.

"Yes, I believed the loan had nothing to do with Sinclair or Teapot Dome."

"I made a mistake. It was my fault. I did not tell you this at Palm Beach."

"Had you suggested to Mr. Fall when you gave him that check that you did not have sufficient funds to cover that amount?" Walsh demand.

"No."

"Then why did he tell you he'd call you up before he cashed it?"

"Why, it was a big loan, not a one-center. The checks would have been made good."

"What papers did you have Duckstein put in the private safe deposit box?"

"That prospectus from Fall on the ranch, and some personal papers with no Teapot Dome connection."

"It was quite a precaution and expense for anything so unimportant, was it not?"

"You bet. I'd hire six boxes for anything in connection with this business."

"It would have been better to have had as much foresight regarding the check stubs wouldn't it?"

"No sir. It would have been better not to have got mixed up in this thing."

McLean said he first met Fall on a fishing trip in Texas in 1920 in a party which included "President and Mrs. Harding, Attorney General Daugherty and others."

"How long have you known the attorney general?"

"Since boyhood."

McLean said he was made a special agent of the department of justice shortly after President Harding was inaugurated but that he had performed no services "of any brilliant character."

Washington, March 12.—A full measure of drama and surprises was promised in the great oil scandal investigation today as Edward Beale McLean, newspaper publisher, and one of the most important figures in the inquiry, was notified to appear for examination before the senate public lands committee.

McLean is one of the "big four" consisting also of Harry F. Sinclair, E. L. Doheny, and ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall, around which much of the committee's investigation of alleged fraud, graft and corruption in the naval reserve leases has centered.

More than two months has passed since a subpoena first was issued for McLean. Pleading illness of himself and members of his family, McLean secured postponement after the first subpoena on January 3 and Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, went to Palm Beach to examine him. There, finding that McLean has misled the committee concerning the famous $100,000 "loan" to Fall, Walsh returned to Washington, and, on February 14, in face of new developments involving the publisher in the inquiry, a second subpoena was issued.

McLean then immediately hurried to Washington and has been waiting to appear while the investigators delved into his secret activities in the famous Palm Beach telegrams.

Previous to putting McLean on the stand today, however, the committee planned to hear three White House attaches whose names were found in the telegrams. These are P. E. McKenna, President Coolidge's doorkeeper; E. W. Smithers, telegrapher and E. W. Starling of the White House secret service force.

Action also was expected by the senate today confirming Senator Ladd, Republican, North Dakota, as new chairman of the committee, replacing Senator Lenroot, Republican, Wisconsin, resigned. On all sides satisfaction was expressed with Ladd, who is one of the La Follette insurgent lieutenants in the upper chamber.

N. Y. C. Trains to Halt for Funeral

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 12.—Funeral services for Alfred H. Smith, late president of the New York Central Lines, killed in a fall from his horse last Saturday while riding in Central Park, were to be held here this afternoon.

Public services, which will be held at St. Thomas Episcopal Church, will be broadcasted through station W.J.Z. to the thousands of New York Central employes.

A private service was to be held earlier at the Smith family home, Chappaqua, N. Y.

All train operations on the many New York Central Lines will be suspended for one minute at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Smith, the widow, arrived in New York at midnight, after a record breaking trans-continental trip. Her train, from Los Angeles, made the run in 68 hours and 11 minutes. The previous record, made in 1906 by E. H. Harriman, was 71 hours and 27 minutes.

Williams Gets Homer.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Leesburg, Fla., March 12.—Cold weather today continued to make spring training unpleasant for the Phillies. Yesterday the players had to wear two and three shirts to keep comfortable. Cy Williams jumped into form by knocking out a homer which helped the regulars beat the Yannigans 8 to 4.

Met. League Ends This Week

Brooklyn Will Undoubtedly Be Champion For Both Halves—Borgman Leads Scorers—C. Husta Is Third In Scoring.

Brooklyn lost its hold on first place for a brief span of twenty-four hours last week when Paterson defeated Yonkers on Saturday night by a close margin, and by so doing gained the top rung of the ladder, until the speedy visitations came right back on Sunday and Knocked off Kingston in the replay of the protested contest. This victory enabled Brooklyn to once more assume its position as pacemaker.

This week will practically wind up the second half of the Metropolitan Basketball League season, there being but one remaining game on the schedule to be decided after next Sunday night.

Brooklyn will unquestionably be subjected to its hardest test of the year, as both Paterson and Greenpoint will be met away from home, but the charges of Manager Donlon are more confident than ever before that this additional handicap will but spur them on to greater efforts so that by the time next week rolls around, the championship of both halves of the Metropolitan season will be safely packed away. If this feat can be accomplished, Brooklyn will take rank with Kingston as being the only league team in this section of the country ever able to land both sections of an organization as strong as the Metropolitan has proven this season.

Should Paterson win, Brooklyn will be compelled to win its remaining two games to tie, while if Brooklyn wins from the Legionaires, Greenpoint and Trenton will still have to stop the Visitations in order to permit Paterson to gain a tie. With this condition existing the feeling in the various cities involved is that the finest exhibitions of the season are to be provided in the four remaining games.

Of the seventy odd players who have made their appearance in the league this season, C. Husta and Artus of Kingston and Malone and Garland of Yonkers are the only men to appear with their respective clubs in every game since the start. Fortunately for Husta, the only game he was out of was thrown out of the league standings and ordered replayed.

England Asks For Dual Meet

Her Athletes Against Our Following Olympic Games—Expects to Get Beat But Event Would Take in Much Money.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 12.—With the commendable idea of providing diversion for dear old London, a plot is thickening whereby the Olympic teams of the United States and England will take issue in an international dual meet subsequent to the Olympic games in Paris this summer. The idea is strictly England's own, and it has even gone so far as to dispatch one, Richmond Temple, director of the London Association, to New York, to see what can be done about it.

Temple hopes to convince A. A. U. officials that the enterprise will be all for the best. He will go into immediate conference with them, armed with pleas calculated to prove that the meet will react favorably upon the amicable relations between the two countries, and can be conducted with slight expense to either, to say nothing of the prospect of much profit.

It is understood that Temple can promise the use of a stadium, seating 250,000 for the affair. In this case, an attendance of 50 per cent would go some distance toward underwriting the expense of the entire American Olympic trip, he declares.

Present plans call for a program of 12 events, mostly of the standard variety, with first places only to count, according to the continental system of scoring.

There is no catch in the thing, Mr. Temple intimates. The British have nothing up the sleeve, behind the ear, or under the arm pit. They expect to lose.

The writer might add taht they will not be disappointed. As far as is known of British athletics on this side, the Americans have little to fear in a dual meet. At the Antwerp Olympics the British turned out two men worthy of attention, namely A. G. Hill, the middle distancer, and H. F. V. Edward, the negro sprinter.

Edward is now in this country and finds some difficulty in qualifying in his heats against American sprinters. He seems to be all over and done with. Hill is well over 36 years and can hardly return to the form which brought him home to a double victory in the 800 and 1,500 metres races at Antwerp.

Leap Year Dance Tonight.

Everything is in readiness for the big leap year dance at Clermont hall this evening. Mr. Whitterker who conducts weekly dances at that hall has secured the Blind Musicians of West Point to furnish the music and anyone who has heard this orchestra will know just what is in store for them this evening. During the evening, there will be moonlight dancing. To make this dance one of the best yet, Mr. Whitterker will give everyone attending confetti, streamers, balloons, whistles, rattlers, horns, and other novelties. A large number of tickets have been sold in advance.

Reds Play Tomorrow.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Orlando, Fla., March 12.—Official announcement of the appointment of Jack Hendricks to be manager of the Cincinnati Reds is expected from President "Garry" Herrmann within a day or so. The Reds play their first game of the season tomorrow when they meet Indianapolis at Plant City.

Braves Shiver.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 12.—Cold weather today cut short the practice of the Braves. The Braves will oppose the Cardinals tomorrow at Bradentown.

Dail Receives Tobin's Charges

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Dublin, March 12.—Accusations of government inefficiency and failure to administer the Anglo-Irish treaty properly, made by Major General Liam Tobin, were placed before the Dail Eireann today by Joseph McGrath, who resigned yesterday as minister of commerce and labor in the Free State government.

Tobin and Colonel Dalton were the ringleaders of the attempted mutiny in the Free State army, the government alleges.

The session of the Dail was given over to discussion of the attempted mutiny and the charges of the would-be mutineers.

It was anticipated that the Tobin-Dalton-McGrath group would receive some support from the government benches although there appeared to be slight chance that the government would be defeated and thus be compelled to resign.

Pressure is being exerted upon President William T. Cosgrave to make an amicable settlement with the anti-government group. It was reported that Cosgrave already has made overtures to Tobin.

Meanwhile, stern military precautions are being taken. The streets are patrolled by armed soldiers and a strong guard occupied the Dail building.

UNDERWOOD'S STATE WILL BACK HIM AT CONVENTION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Birmingham, Ala., March 12.—Oscar W. Underwood will go to the national Democratic convention in June backed by a solid delegation from his home state.

By virtue of his overwhelming victory in yesterday's preferential primary, Senator Underwood has the right to select the Alabama delegation and to control this state's votes on the floor of the convention. This privilege is granted by law recently enacted by the state legislature.

Senator Underwood scored an overwhelming victory over his two opponents, L. B. Musgrove, millionaire coal magnate and William Jennings Bryan's candidate, and Marvin A. Dinsmore, Birmingham lawyer, self appointed McAdoo man.

A tabulation of votes this morning gives Underwood approximately 22,000 majority.

Fifty nine counties out of 67 in the state gave Underwood 49,217.

Orange Championship Game.

The championship of the Orange County Basketball League will be decided Friday evening at Memorial Grammar School, Middletown, when the Cornwall High School five will meet the Tuxedo quintet. The Orange County League is composed of high school teams not in the DUSO Counties League. The league is divided into two sections: Cornwall-on-Hudson, Highland Falls, Montgomery and Walden in section one; Florida, Monroe, Goshen and Tuxedo in section two.

Thompson Gains Favor.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Lakeland, Fla., March 12.—Pete Thompson, recruit infielder secured from the University of Southern California, where he was a freshman, showed considerable skill working out at first base in the Cleveland Indians' second practice.

Mack Signs Catcher.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Montgomery, Ala., March 12.—Another catcher, Charles Gibson, student at the Alabama Poly Tech Institute, has been signed by the Athletics, according to an announcement by Connie Mack.

Sog Skull Practice.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Winter Haven, Fla., March 12.—A sudden drop to around 45, an echo of the Atlantic coast storm, confined White Sox maneuvers to skull practice before the grate fire. Relief was expected this afternoon.
